Guy's Hospital in London will bring air from the sea, through pipes, for patients that need more oxygen. It is not a dream, it will be done.

When will great cities near the sea bring water from the ocean to the city and supply salt baths for the children that need them?

And when will doctors have hospitals in the air, floating in anchored "dirigibles," at one thousand, five thousand, twenty thousand feet up, giving patients just the kind of air and temperature they need? That also will come.

No need to go TWO HUNDRED miles to the mountains to find an elevation of five thousand feet when you can find it by going ONE mile up into the air.

When the wise men, headed by the President, gathered in Paris to invent a process for making beautiful peace perpetual, the first suggestion was the boycott. All the nations willing to be peaceful would boycott any wicked little nation that might show a disposition to fight.

They tried it on Russia. It didn't work. Russia beat everybody that came within reach and frightened all the others. Now the Allies are saying, "Nice Russia, pretty Russia, come and do business with us."

But the boycott idea hasn't been given up entirely. You read that big ships leaving the United States for England are NOT to stop at Queenstown, which needs the shipping, and the American tourists that land and go by jaunting car to Cork, Killarney and other beautiful places.

It is hard to give up a good idea. It wouldn't work on Russia because she is so big. Perhaps it will work on Ireland because she is smaller—probably it won't.

Editor Gangadhar Tilak died and his body was burned solemnly in the presence of vast crowds, on the beach at Poona, in India.

It was a great celebration for everybody except Gangadhar, who didn't know what was happening. It took the form of a demonstration against the English.

But give the devil his due, also John Bull. Mr. Gangadhar's body was burned all alone. There was no Mrs. Gangadhar, alive and wailing, thrown into the fire to burn with him. The English stopped that.

Left to their old-fashioned habits, without English interference, the burning of Gangadhar would have included a suttee, the widow of the editor proving her respect-ability by insisting on being burned alive with his dead body.

You can't tell what will happen in this world, especially after a war. A little while ago those that did not know much about human beings and nations, said: "France and England will be devoted friends forever. And Germany will pay the bill."

Now the Paris Matin accuses England of helping the Germans against France in order to keep up the price of English coal. One thing is sure, France is giving a billion and a quarter francs to Germany to get coal.

Germany pays coal at seventy-two francs a ton, and France pays something like two hundred and forty francs. The French say this is due to England's determination to keep up the price of her coal exports. If England and France could know just what each is thinking of the other, each would be shocked at the other.

From all over the country, without contradiction, comes the statement that railway owners are pleased with what the government has done for them. They may be. Fifteen hundred million a year added in one lump, with the assurance that in spite of all past crimes and misdemeanors, they will make at least 6 per cent., is not so bad for a lot of concerns that could not run themselves and were practically bankrupt.

It is understood, furthermore, that if there is anything the railroads want that they haven't had, they must not hesitate to ask for it.

When you begin to pay new freight rates, commutation rates and regular ticket rates, you will realize that there is a difference between railroads shouldn't be happy as long as the public pocket is there.

Statistics show that suicides are increasing in the country, diminishing in the city. The moving picture helps to explain that. Suicides sometimes are bored, sometimes discouraged. The excitement of moving pictures discourages boredom and diminishes discouragement.

Suicides of men are twice as numerous as suicides of women, one more proof that women are more courageous than men.

Every surgeon will tell you that women face and go through surgical operations more bravely than men, and statistics prove that women go through the pains and disappointments of life more bravely. Suicide is quitting. Women are rarely quitters.

CRISIS FOR PONZI

DOESN'T KNOW HOW MUCH HE OWES; THRONG DEMANDS MONEY AS RUN INCREASES

The affairs of Charles Ponzi are at a crisis.

Thousands of frightened noteholders, in steadily increasing numbers, today besieged the Pi Alley entrance to the office of the Securities Exchange Company in the worst run that Ponzi yet has had to face.

The old alley was packed with a line of excited investors, some of whom had been there since early morning, but no attempt was made by Ponzi to expedite payments.

It was pointed out that at the rate at which payments were being made, about twenty at hour, it would require months to take care of all the note holders, said to number now about 25,000.

While the throng fidgeted outside, the "mystery man" issued a statement to newspapermen in which he said that he did not know what his liabilities were and did not care, as he had plenty of money to meet them.

Ponzi declared he could lay his hands on $7,500,000 in this country, which did not include securities in vaults or real estate, and that he had received an offer of a like sum from a Canadian bank.

PLANS NEW ORGANIZATION.

He stated that he paid out yesterday to note holders $1,522.50, bringing the total payments since the run started last Tuesday up to between $4,000,000 and $4,500,000.

Ponzi announced that he planned to form an organization capitalized at $100,000,000 and eventually at $200,000,000, the subscribers of which

DIVES TO DEATH IN DARK

"Dare Devil Air Pilot" and Another Flier Crash and Are Killed

Los Angeles, Aug. 3.—Lieutenant Omer Locklear, "dare devil air pilot," whose stunts of leaping from one plane to another in mid-air have thrilled thousands, is dead today.

His plane crashed from a height of 2,000 feet late last night, while he was engaged in night flying for the movies. With him died Lieutenant Milt Elliott, pilot in all his hair raising stunts.

Hundreds of persons, including many movie stars, witnessed the death of the daring pair. Their plane fell in a straight nose dive like a flaming meteor from a dark sky. A few minutes before Locklear had been setting off a great pyrotechnic display, shooting rockets high in the air.

According to fliers who witnessed the tragedy, Locklear's plane appeared under control at all times. It is believed that both men became blinded by the glare of the fireworks and misjudged the distance from the ground so that the crash came without their realizing their danger.

The spectacular drop was filmed by several cameras. It was a part of the show for the plane to nose dive with a great display of fireworks, and the cameras continued to grind as the famous pilot went down to his death. Both bodies were crushed and burned almost beyond recognition.

Locklear was a native of Fort Worth, Tex. Elliott came from Gadsden, Ala.

WOMAN MAKES SUICIDE SURE

Slashes Throat and Leaps From Window After Previous Attempt Is Thwarted

New Bedford, Aug. 3.—Mrs Anastasia Postiak committed suicide today by cutting her throat with a razor in the presence of her husband and then jumping from the third story window of her home on Brooks avenue.

Her suicide followed an unsuccessful attempt at self-destruction an hour earlier, when she threw herself in front of a street car, but was pulled off the tracks just as the fender struck her.

Mrs. Postiak, her husband and three children left their home early today to go picnicking, as they waited for a street car at Kempton and Purchase streets the couple quarrelled, and when the car came she threw herself on the track in front of it.

The woman was questioned by police, but on expressing contrition for her attempt at self-destruction she was allowed to go home. According to her husband, she resumed the quarrel there, and brought it to a climax by slashing herself and jumping out of the window.

Life was extinct when she was picked up. Physicians were unable to say whether the fall or the wound in the throat caused death.

BOOSTED HIGH COST LIVING

Beef Barons Increased Prices 8 Cents a Pound During Railroad Difficulties

Declaring that food prices in July were the highest in the last seven years of the high cost of living, the Commission on the Necessaries of Life today charged in its official report to the Legislature that the meat and provision dealers are again profiteering at the expense of the people.

"During the last two months," said the commission, "whether because of the fact that dealers in the necessaries of life are no longer in fear of prosecution by the Federal authorities, or whether they feel a certain justification in raising their prices because of the enormous profits made in other lines of business there has been an increased tendency

Absence of Fat Man Worries G. O. P.

New York, Aug. 3.—Republican leaders in New York admitted frankly today that they were worried to death over the fat man.

Mrs. Arthur L. Livermore, home from the Harding notification ceremonies at Marion, intimated that William Howard Taft has [illegible] Senator Harding [illegible] Livermore's opinion as of [illegible] committee. What impressed her most in Marion was the conspicuous absence of corpulent citizens.

"With the exception of some sitting on the platform," said Mrs. Livermore, "the men in that audience impressed me as a fine number of lean, energetic, typical Americans."

LYNN BOY DROWNS IN SIGHT OF LITTLE SISTER

Henry Farron, a nine-year-old boy, who lived at No. 3 Chestnut street, Lynn, was drowned in Flax Pond today while fishing. His little sister, six years of age, who was on a raft with him, screamed for help as her brother, who could not swim, came up under the platform on which they had been waiting for a bite.

A man and boy in a boat and Charles Stewart answered her calls and the body was recovered. After first aid treatment the child was rushed in the police ambulance to a hospital, where the pulmotor was applied without effect.

BATTLE ABOARD TRANSPORT

Bayonets Subdue Russians Who Attempt to Seize Ship; Several Killed

Special to International News Service and the London Daily Express.

Constantinople, Aug. 3.—News of a battle on board a transport carrying deported Russians to Odessa when Bolshevik agents attempted to seize the vessel were received here today.

The Russians had been sent here from France for deportation to Odessa because of their Bolshevist sympathies. Two Russian People's Commissaries, who got on board the ship with forged passports, led an "uprising" when the transport was passing into the Black Sea from the Bosphorus.

The Russians attempted to disarm the crew and seize the vessel, but were charged by fifty Senegalese guards with fixed bayonets. The decks were cleared after a number of Russians had been killed and wounded.

The transport proceeded on her way, accompanied by a destroyer.

GREAT RUSH FOR MONEY AS PONZI FAILS TO HURRY PAYMENTS

"Man of Mystery" Doesn't Know and Doesn't Care About His Liabilities.

would receive a conservative monthly interest on extra dividends quarterly, semi-monthly, yearly or from time to time. The plan would attract capital for investment and would be used to promote industrial enterprises.

"They did not break me yesterday," said Ponzi, "and they will not do it tomorrow. I am ready to pay them off as fast as they come."

I just came from breakfast at a fashionable restaurant where I had a doughnut and a cup of coffee. It was very good. I could not afford to pay more." said he jocosely.

"SPIRITS ARE HIGH."

My spirits this morning are 100 per cent higher, declared either Simon Swig or Mr. McMaster.

"I don't want to discuss Mr. McMasters any more by answering any of his wild charges. What I have to say about him would not be fit to put in print.

"I do not care to tell what banks I have my money in. That is my business. Will say, though, that I have assets right here in this country of about $7,000,000, which does not include securities in vaults, real estate, etc. This is cash I can lay my hands on.

"VERY NICE OF THEM."

"I have here a copy of a telegram from some bank in Canada saying 'Can send you seven million dollars according to your order.' I don't know who is offering this money, but it is very nice of them.

"I paid off yesterday to note holders $414,322.50, which brings the total amount I have paid out since the run started last Tuesday up to between $4,000,000 and $4,500,000.

Ponzi was interrupted by a telephone call over long-distance from a Detroit machinery manufacturer asking the Boston man to join him in business. Ponzi told his secretary, Miss Mell, to tell the party calling that if the Detroit man had a scheme to make money to let him know. He then chuckled as though he considered this considerable of a joke.

PAYMENTS ARE RESUMED.

A roar went up from the waiting men and women when the doors were opened shortly after nine o'clock and the first group of ten or fifteen was allowed to enter and proceed to the School street office. Here payments were resumed as usual, slowly and methodically, the employes, although radiating confidence in their employer, being instructed by the closeness of their quarters.

Ponzi himself was not on hand at the opening of the office.

It was announced that he intended to close for regular business on Thursday, having notified one of his branch managers to that effect. This decision was made, it was stated, when a partial audit of the books of the company failed to show anything criminal and the postoffice inspectors also were unable to find anything illegal.

PELLETIER AROUSED.

District Attorney Pelletier has clashed with Attorney-General Allen as a result of the Ponzi probe and declares that any failure on the part of the Attorney-General to obtain information of the case in his possession is Mr. Allen's own fault.

Mr. Pelletier, when interviewed in New York, resented the implication that he was keeping facts in the case under cover. He denied that the investigation was taken from his hands by Attorney-General Allen, who apparently did not believe that it was worth a conference to find out what he had done or what he knew.

REFUSES TO GIVE UP BOOKS.

Further friction in the investigation of Ponzi cropped out when Edwin L. Pride, the auditor appointed by the Federal District Court to examine the books of the Securities Exchange Company, declared that he would not give up Ponzi's books to an auditor whom Attorney-General Allen will appoint to check them over.

Mr. Pride, too, is aggrieved at the attitude of Mr. Allen. "I was largely responsible," he said, "for furnishing the state evidence upon which the Bay State Wells Trust was convicted," he said, "and one of the results of that investigation was the election of the present attorney-general who, as a member of the House, started the investigation.

"He at least owed me the courtesy of joining with the United States government to audit the Ponzi accounts. He has been fit to suggest another accountant. But whoever that may be he cannot have the books until I finish with them."

Attorney-General Allen later declared that he had no intention of superseding Mr. Pride. His purpose in suggesting an auditor, he said, was to facilitate the Federal auditor's work.

NO QUESTIONS BY ALLEN.

District-Attorney Pelletier, who is attending the Knights of Columbus convention in New York City, had the following to say about his part in the probe:

"Attorney - General Allen telephoned me Friday morning asking if I had received his letter, which had come that morning. I told him yes, and that I would leave further proceeding in the case in my hands. He let me if my auditor had gone to work and I told him no. He said he was glad as he had his own auditor to put on the books.

"I offered him my assistance then and later and through the press on Friday, but he did not ask me a single question.

"He saw Ponzi after I did, but did not invite me to attend, nor did he ask me on that day for any advice or assistance. The bank in New York Ponzi named was the Commercial Italian, but he did not know the number on Broadway, and further said that he had not been functioning through it for at least sixty days.

"The Attorney-General took this case from me when I was getting well into it, and he did not even consider it worth a conference to find out what I had done or what I knew. That is his privilege, but he must not try to lay at my door any failure on his part to avail himself of everything I knew or any failure on his part to thoroughly examine Ponzi when he was at his office.

"When I questioned Ponzi no stenographer was present and no written statement was given or taken.

In Attorney-General Allen's statement he declared that if Ponzi gave the District Attorney the name of the New York bank through which he was operating Mr. Pelletier was in possession of information which he did not have and implied that these facts should have been forthcoming from the District Attorney.

"520 P. C. Miller" Doesn't Envy Ponzi

Rockville Centre, L. I., Aug. 3.—William P. Miller, known years ago as "520 per cent. Miller," who swindled thousands of New Englanders and others through promotion of the Franklin Syndicate, is watching the progress of Charles Ponzi of Boston with much interest.

Miller, who served a term in Sing Sing, now conducts a grocery here, and declared that he would not take $10,000,000 to exchange places with Ponzi, if the latter's scheme, is not one hundred per cent. honest.

He said Ponzi must be a "wonderful bird," but it seemed reasonable to him that banking and brokerage concerns with men well versed in foreign exchange would have known of any huge profits that could be legitimately realized in such matters. Miller said that many of his investors deserted him when his scheme became known.

Providence Man Says Ponzi's System is Legitimate

Many persons know the Ponzi method and are operating it every day through relatives in foreign countries, according to J. F. Bell of Providence, who says Ponzi's method is no mystery and that his methods are legitimate.

Such a volume of business by Ponzi would insure payment of all his obligations, states Bell, if he has operated a miniature system with handsome profits.

Bell says the United States government cannot stop the legitimate exchange and conversion of money, according to Bell.

The Providence man, who was interviewed at his office to that city, admitted carrying on the same line that he says Ponzi is operating. He said:

"Ponzi was fortunate in having no banking competition. Any citizen has the right to go to a bank and buy a draft for foreign money. The postoffice is not necessary. When the bank draft is issued it is mailed to a confederate in the foreign country and United States money order is given. This order is remailed to the United States and the bank cashes the order."

Bell says Ponzi's system is far reaching and he operates the same way that he (Bell) does, save that Ponzi has a mammoth system and is ably assisted by banks. Bell showed where he had bought 250 pounds sterling in English money and is awaiting the return of the exchange.

Close New Jersey Office of Ponzi

Bayonne, N. J., Aug. 3.—W. H. Mackie, local agent of Charles Ponzi of the Securities Exchange Company of Boston, has closed the Bayonne office indefinitely at the request of Prosecutor Pierre S. Garven of Hudson County.

Investigation into the affairs of the company was discontinued and the prosecutor said he would be satisfied with the action of the Federal authorities at Boston.

WEARY ARMY IN PONZI'S LINE

Women Leave Babies at Home to Get Back Money; Many Waive Their Interest

The day's vigils began before the doors of Charles Ponzi's Securities Exchange Company were opened.

Boston's daily pilgrims, through the weary hours, lined curb and street and alley and stairway. They were the small army of men and women, some days of weeks ago, gave their good greenbacks to Ponzi, "man of mystery," to keep for thirty days and then to return, plus 50 per cent. interest. All day long, now, they wait to be paid back those same greenbacks, in most cases waiving the interest.

A cursory walk through the polyglot throng reveals the humors and the mixed elements of Ponzi investors.

LEFT BABY AT HOME.

There was today, first of all, the woman who had left her baby at home. She arrived at 10 or a little after. She wore a dowdy blue serge dress, a battered hat, shoes none too up-to-date, and her hands were gloveless. She was waiting for "mine," she said. "Where are they paying off?"

"Nine Williams court" the loud voiced barker at the head of the stairs at No. 27 School street, told her. She walked around.

"How much have you in?" was the inevitable question, for this woman looked hardly able to call $10 her own.

"Only $3,000," was the calm reply.

"My land!" The exclamation might have been something stronger, as the dowdy woman went on to explain. "That is, I have $2,800 that will mature next Tuesday. I'm loving that, till I take away my nice, fat $4,500 in its place. But there is $100 which my husband put in last week, which I am taking out. He said, being as Ponzi's checks may not last another forty-five days, we better take out the $400."

"PONZI'S ALL RIGHT."

"And you feel sure of the 33,000, feel safe to leave it with Ponzi another week?"

"The woman smiled, in sheer pity for the skeptic. "I do that," said she. "Ponzi's all right. Isn't he the man that's made $6,000 for my husband? It's because of what he made for my brother-in-law that brought my husband and me to Ponzi in the first place. Now today is my baby, not my money. You see, this week is the first court week in some miles away from the place where they pay off upstairs. And there's a good thousand people ahead of me. And I've got a nursing baby at home that'll be crying for me before I get back. It's baby's feedtime. I am worried about it, but I'm for Ponzi, he'll come up, all right."

Different, a little, was she from a worried-looking woman, who frustered about the strong-armed barker at the head of the stairs, School street, as if she had never known her self once in all her thirty odd years of life.

"What do you want, lady?" he asked.

DECIDES TO LEAVE IT.

"I don't know," she answered, and she looked it.

"Well, if you don't, nobody does," he informed her.

She quivered, on one toe and then on another. "Well, it's this way. I put $1250 with Ponzi and it's only two till next Wednesday to make—I guess —$250. And I don't know whether to take it out or whether to leave it in. What would you do?" she asked, confidingly, of the strong-armed man.

"I decline to advise you, lady," he roared. "Some is taking it out, lady, and some is leaving it in. I left mine in, with Ponzi. I only wish I had more to leave in."

The undecided lady took resolution. "I guess," she said, "as I've left it in this long I might just as well leave it till Wednesday."

A fireman, in uniform, waited among the others. He had had $300 already redeemed—at $450. He waited with two more $200 checks. "Brought them of the discouraged, down Pi Alley," he confided. "Gave $90 apiece for them. Now I'll get them cashed, soon's they open up. Make $20." He smiled.

So, restless, seething, waiting, the crowd keeps its vigil, all the hot day long, over at No. 27 School street and in Pi Alley. And, now and then, the magic breaks, amid "shs!" of the crowd. This happens when a little man, in the latest effect in tailored suits, with a cane swinging jauntily on his arm, comes out or goes in.

"There's him!" "There's Ponzi!" the crowd whispers. And they make way. And a young man, with an amused smile, who still keeps his secret undisclosed, walks out, with his bodyguard.

And still the wonder grows. And still the crowds wait. Wait, with dogged curiosity, against the day when the mystery will be solved, and Ponzi's secret be a secret no longer.

Lawrence Run on Ponzi Falls Off

Lawrence, Aug. 3.—The run on the office of Charles Ponzi in the American House building in Essex street was resumed today on the reported announcements of Percy Lamb, the wool-sorter manager, who at frequent intervals yesterday and this morning urged all who wanted to cash in to do so, but warned against speculators.

Lamb, formerly a Lawrence mill worker, who went to Boston as a sorter when the mills shut down, appeared to have the crowd with him.

Word has spread about that Ponzi has over half a million of dollars deposited in one of the banks here. This helped to quiet the tumult of yesterday when the office was besieged by noteholders.

As much money has been taken in here as in Boston, Ponzi's agent declared today.

"They haven't got the goods on Ponzi. I will give my personal check to anyone worried about his note," shouted Lamb.

Lamb, who was one of the original local investors, is credited with having made $100,000 out of the Ponzi business, and his own investments.

As fast as a crowd collects Lamb speaks.

"Ponzi will make good every nickel," he shouted, and the crowd cheered. Mill workers who had banked their earnings caused much excitement, it is stated, when they drew their money from the banks to invest in Ponzi's enterprise.

Several matured notes were paid with the interest today.

HONORABLE DISCHARGE FOR COAST GUARD

Upon application, honorable discharges are to be given members of the Coast Guard who have served in the war and who were discharged from the service November 11, 1918, and before the expiration of their full enlistment. The only qualifications to obtaining such honorable discharge are enlistment before the declaration of peace; discharge on or after the above date and a record which warrants honorable discharge.

League Chains Erin, Bishop Insists

Bishop Michael J. Gallagher, of Detroit, newly elected national president of the Friends of Irish Freedom, in a statement just issued, condemned the League of Nations as one great obstacle preventing the freedom of Ireland. He said:

"The League of Nations covenant is an Anglo-American alliance, with France, Italy and Japan added, and its chief purpose is the preservation of the territorial integrity of the British Empire as increased by the late war.

"The fight must be kept up until the proposed League of Nations is finally set aside. Lloyd George must be taught that he cannot buy the votes of Irish Americans by conceding Dominion Home Rule or any other 'concession,' big or little, to Ireland.

"We are citizens of the United States, who stand for the honor and interests of this republic above and before all other mundane things, and we are irrevocably opposed to having the blood and treasure of American people used to keep in subjection to England the hundreds of millions of the human race who are entitled to freedom with us."

SCORES MEAT PROFITEERS

State Board Says Living Cost Reached Highest Point in July

in this community to profiteer, especially in the meat and produce business.

The cost of living has jumped 102.8 per cent in Massachusetts since 1912, the commission said in its report. Clothing has dropped, but the meat profiteers, by advancing their prices, have kept up the general high cost of living.

Wholesale meat dealers jumped the price of beef eight cents a pound during the railroad trouble and dropped it back when the troubles were adjusted, but the retailers have failed or refused to lower the price," the report declared.

The commission predicts that general living costs will break, because of the abundance of raw material and the enormous crops of grain, wool and cotton in the making. Wages have increased from 18.16 to 23 per cent in the past six months, but only the thrift of the average man and woman enable them to meet the high costs.

"The remedy for conditions is on a large extent in the hands of the people," the report said, "and if the public will refuse to pay excessive prices, but will get along on what they have as far as possible and when it is necessary to shop around and get real value for their money, prices will inevitably come down."

That prices will continue to advance, because of the lack of new building ventures, the state's report said, is the greatest of all in the origin of prices, and that perfectly good cod and haddock are going to waste because of the refusal of people to pay 25 cents a pound for fish are among the other observations made by the commission in its report to the Legislature."

CITY AUTOMOBILE INJURES WOMAN

Helen Stell, fifty-six, and Mabel Jenkins, fifty, both living at No. 154 West Canton street, were knocked down at Massachusetts avenue and St. Botolph street by an automobile owned by the city of Boston and operated by Patrick H. Hogan of No. 66 East Dorchester street, Boston.

At the City Hospital the Jenkins woman was found to be suffering from a broken leg and bruises, and Miss Stell was found to be suffering from a broken collar bone, abrasions of both knees and contusions of the lower legs. She was held for treatment.

DISCHARGE BATHER HELD ON PROFANITY CHARGE

After James Dairymple had testified that Patrolman Thomas Dwyer had drawn a gun on him while he was in a bathing suit, Judge Logan in the South Boston Court today found him not guilty of using profanity to the policeman. Dairymple was arrested on the Strandway. Sawyer said that Dairymple told him that Dwyer refused and grabbed for his club. He said he then drew his club and left. Dairymple denied the charges.

600 FORCED OUT OF WORK IN HAVERHILL

Haverhill, Aug. 3.—More than 600 men and women employed in twenty operatives in the shoe factories were forced out of employment here when the firms refused to open their factories. New price lists were submitted by the Shoe Workers' Protective Union, calling for a 44 hour week, increase in wages per week in some instances. The manufacturers assert that the lists are prohibitive.

Woman Candidate Against Gillett

Speaker Frederick H. Gillett will have as his opponent for reelection in Congress, Miss Fanny M. O'Keefe of Springfield. She will run on stickers in the primaries as the Democratic aspirant for the nomination. James D. Lynch did not secure the required number of signatures to his papers.

Miss O'Keefe has won her political interest and popularity from her father, the late Nicholas O'Keefe, for many years recognized as "the boss" of the Hampden County Democracy. She is a brilliant speaker and writer, and it is claimed by those who are urging her candidacy that, as a contestant with the Speaker of the National House, her campaign would command wide attention and would not only gain friends for the party in the Second District, but would effectively advance the women's political movement nationally.

The Democratic State Committee, it is said, would be pleased to have Miss O'Keefe run.

'SEEN ENOUGH OF GAY LIFE,' SAYS GIRL IN ARENAS SHOOTING

EAGER TO GO BACK HOME

Denies She Ever Met Elwell, Murdered Turfman; Renounces Stage Ambition

New York, Aug. 3.—"I've seen enough of the gay life and I'm going back to my husband just as soon as I can. Darning socks and washing dishes isn't so bad after all."

These observations were made today in Bellevue Hospital by the girl who was mixed up in the shooting affair of Dr. Jose Arenas last Saturday night.

A nurse attending the girl said she would be out in two or three days, as the flesh wound she received from a bullet from the dentist's pistol just before he slew himself is healing rapidly. It is expected she will leave in company with her husband, Elmer Schultz, whose home in Toledo she fled about two months ago, but who has forgiven all.

The girl, who has been calling Ruth Jackson and "Babe Ruth" since arrival in this city, was annoyed yesterday when Acting Captain Michael Quinn, in charge of the Fourth Detective Division, asked her if she had known Joseph Bowen Elwell, the whist wizard, whose murder on the morning of June 11 remains an unsolved mystery.

"Good Lord, I hope they haven't got me mixed up in the Elwell case," she said. "I've got troubles enough as it is." She said that as far as she knew she had never seen the card player and turfman.

"I guess I'd have been all right," she told Captain Quinn, "if my mother had been more strict with me. She was too easy and always let me have my own way. I've had enough of this life now, though. I hope my husband gets here soon."

She told Captain Quinn that she was twenty-two years old. "I wanted to go on the stage, but I'm through with all that kind of stuff," she said.

LEGION MUST FURNISH OWN FIRING SQUADS

Firing squads for military funerals will no longer be furnished the American Legion and other veteran organizations, according to an order received by the State headquarters of the legion from the Northeastern Department, owing to a shortage of the enlisted personnel at the Boston forts and military encampments. One sergeant and eight rifles, however, may be obtained on condition that former service men serve as the firing squad.

MAY DROP CHARGE AGAINST TAMMANY BOSS

New York, Aug. 3.—Indictments against Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, and four co-defendants, charged with conspiracy to defraud the government by falsifying income tax returns, may be dismissed. Supreme Court Justice Lydon declares that "good and sufficient" reasons for the withdrawal of the charges may exist. Justice Lydon granted the defendants permission to inspect the minutes of the extraordinary grand jury which indicted them.

U. S. ARMY REQUIRES 92,803 MORE MEN

Washington, Aug. 3.—The strength of the army a month ago was 202,561. On this basis the army is short 2,334 officers and 92,803 enlisted men. In the near future many new commissions will be issued for the regular service. Enlistments are exceeding 3,000 a week, a rate that surprises army officials.

O'SHEA CLEARED BY BOARD

Find No Irregularity, But Recommend Dropping Him From Advisory Board

Vindication of John A. O'Shea, music director in Boston public schools, in serious charges of irregular dealings brought by the Finance Commission, but a recommendation that he be dropped from the advisory committee of the school board are contained in the report of that body following an investigation of the charges.

The school committee also takes occasion to criticize severely the methods of the Finance Commission and to recommend that in future persons charged with wrongdoing be given a hearing and that the matter be not given publicity until after an examination has been conducted.

Professor O'Shea was charged with irregularity in conducting the sale of his own piano to the city for $550 and in accepting a loan of $300 from a well-known Boston piano concern. The committee's report finds that his conduct was "unethical," but not dishonorable; that the city received full value for its money; that the advancing of money by the piano concern was not a commission on sales, as alleged, but a personal loan, made without the knowledge of the treasurer; and that the dealings of the concern in question with the city were honorable and fair.

Miss Frances G. Curtis was the only member of the school committee who refused to concur in its criticism of the Finance Commission. Such criticism is not pertinent to the matter in hand, according to her.

SIX PINNED UNDER CAR AFTER 20-FOOT PLUNGE

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 3.—All of the six occupants of an automobile driven by Clarence Dodge of Lyndberg, Vt., were pinned under the machine when a bursting tire caused it to overturn and plunge down a twenty-foot embankment near Echo Lake.

Alfred Moreau, aged forty and Merrill Morrill, aged six, were seriously injured and are in the Whitefield Hospital. The car alighted on a windfall of dead trees at the bottom of the ravine which partly broke its fall.

TROOPS GUARD AGAINST NEGRO RIOTS AT MIAMI

Miami, Fla., Aug. 3.—National Guard troops have been placed on duty in the negro residential section to protect the city against violence threatened by 400 negroes, natives of the Bahama Islands, who have asserted that they will avenge the death of Herbert Brooks, who was reported to have been killed following an attack on a white woman.

Auto Fee Increase Effective Thursday

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin has issued a statement in which he calls the attention of automobile and motorcycle owners that, beginning Thursday next, the increase in registration fees go into effect.

Under the new rates, the registration fee for all automobiles of less than thirty-horse power will be $10. The lowest fee now charged is $5. For motorcycles the new fee will be $5, compared with the present rate of $2. The higher rates do not apply to owners who have already registered their cars for the current year.

BOSS ATTACKED BY EMPLOYES

Contractor at Quincy Fights Workmen as Police Reserves Are Called

Police reserves were rushed to the Merrymount section of Quincy today to rescue Dennis Crowley, a contractor, from the hands of infuriated workmen who were threatening his life.

Crowley had in the meantime fought his way through the ranks of his employes with a pickhandle, and aided the police in the hunt for the leaders of the mutiny.

Joseph Russo was arrested in Merrymount Park. He had a revolver in his pocket, according to the police, and was arraigned in the Quincy Court for carrying concealed weapons.

Trouble started when a workman upset a pail of water in the hands of a boy, according to the contractor.

Crowley remonstrated, and alleges he was threatened with a pick. He took the pick away from the man as the other employes swarmed up at him, and in the fight which followed heads were split and a revolver drawn.

The men were employed on a water main.

RUTH WOODS FREED IN DIAMOND DEALER'S DEATH

HEAVY LOSS IN STOLEN AUTOS

One Insurance Company Forced to Pay Out $15,000 in July for Purloined Cars

Despite the efforts of police and insurance officials to halt the traffic in automobile stealing about Greater Boston, one insurance company alone has sustained losses for the month of July amounting to $15,000, $5,000 of which was for cars stolen in and near this city.

Six cars insured by this company were stolen in Boston proper during the past month. Three were taken on Charles street and three from other sections of the city, one of which was in front of a down-town theatre.

MANY TAKEN TO MAINE.

It is said that when the statistics for the past month have been made up the record of thefts will average about what it has been for the ordinary Summer months regardless of the activities of the police directed against automobile stealing. Not all the cars stolen are low prices ones.

That a large number of cars stolen about Boston are sent into Maine for sale was the expressed belief today of underwriters who have been baffled by the "auto ring."

"There is no doubt but that Maine is stuffed with stolen cars," said the head of one of the large Boston insurance companies today.

"Carelessness of officials in allowing wrong numbers to be used in the registration of cars is one of the greatest aids to the thieves," said this official.

"Stolen cars are taken into other States in violation of the Federal laws, but we never hear of Federal interference with the traffic in stolen cars. People buying stolen cars, either 'fake up' engine and body numbers or use the 'fake' numbers stamped in place of the original number when they register their cars. The State authorities take the word of the person registering their car and issue the necessary registration without making an examination.

INSURED CARS FOUND.

"Unless the number the person owning the stolen cars gives is like a number they already have registered, there is no means of local authorities finding out there is a stolen car registered.

"In time the 'faked' number may come to light, but this is doubtful, and will probably never be discovered if the car is not an insured car.

"There is no marked decrease in the number of automobiles reported stolen. The average of stolen cars is about the same."

POLES ABANDON TRUCE PLAN

Break Off Armistice Negotiations Because of Russian Peace Demands

London, Aug. 3.—Official announcement of the capture of the fortress of Brest Litovsk by the Russians was contained in a Soviet War Office communique wirelessed from Moscow today. Russian troops occupied the city Sunday, capturing "prisoners and trophies," the communique said.

By International News Service.

Paris, Aug. 3.—Armistice negotiations between the Poles and Russians have been broken off, according to official advices received by the French Foreign Office today.

The collapse is reported to have occurred when the members of the Russian delegation demanded a complete discussion of peace terms.

The Polish First and Fourth armies are in full retreat, leaving a wide gap open through which the Red troops are pouring, the advices to the foreign office stated.

The Polish envoys, according to the Foreign Office dispatches, informed the Russians they were not authorized to discuss peace, but only armistice terms.

The Polish plenipotentiaries are said to have left for Warsaw to consult their government. They announced that, if they obtained authority to discuss peace, they would meet the Russians in Minsk on August 4.

The Polish counter offensive is reported in official advices to have collapsed.

The Polish First and Fourth Armies were holding the front north and northeast of Warsaw.

Their retirement is said to have opened the way to the Bug River, towards which the Red forces are now advancing. The Bug River flows north of Warsaw and empties into the Vistula at Novy Dvor, fifteen miles west of the Polish capital.

Violent Battle Rages On Two Sides of Warsaw

By International News Service.

London, Aug. 3.—Violent fighting was still in progress between the Poles and Russians northeast and southeast of Warsaw today, with both sides claiming success.

The Polish War Office claimed that the Russian drive on Warsaw from the north had begun to weaken, while the Soviet War Office at Moscow reported that the Poles were in retreat south of the Narew River, with the Russians in pursuit.

On the old Galician frontier, southeast of Warsaw, where the Poles are undertaking a counter offensive, both sides claimed to be advancing.

The following undated Polish War Office communique was telegraphed from Warsaw today:

"In the sector of Lomza (seventy-five miles northeast of Warsaw) the enemy's attacks are growing weaker. The Bolshevik troops have been making desperate efforts to capture the fortress of Brest Litovsk. Our operations in the Brody sector are proceeding favorably."

(Note—The Soviet War Office wirelessed a communique from Moscow on Saturday saying that the "energetic advance of the Russian Red army had carried it to Brest Litovsk." Later press dispatches said that Brest Litovsk had been captured from the Poles by the Russians.)

According to a dispatch from Vienna quoting advices received in that city from Warsaw, the Russians were compelled to withdraw several cavalry divisions from Galicia to put down a revolutionary movement in Ukrainia.

The Russian army has been ordered by Moscow in a wireless message to continue fighting until August 4, when the armistice conditions will be given to the Poles in detail, according to an Exchange [illegible] dispatch from Vienna today. The Vienna telegram said that the Moscow radiogram had been picked up in Vienna.

A news agency dispatch from Warsaw said that the Russians were insisting upon "secret diplomacy" at the armistice negotiations. This dispatch said that the Polish government had sent a wireless proposal to Moscow that correspondents be allowed to attend the Barnovitshi parley, but the Soviet rejected it.

Says Lloyd George Urged Poles on, Then Forsook Them

Paris, Aug. 3.—A sensational article, alleging that Premier Lloyd George has been advising Poland in the name of the allies since September, 1919, to make war on Soviet Russia, was printed today by the newspaper L'Oepare.

The British Premier was accused of dissuading Ignace Jan Paderewski from making peace with Russia, while the latter was premier of Poland, and it is declared that a promise of military aid was given to the Polish government.

This policy, according to the newspapers, was pushed by the czarist refugees with enormous sums of money distributed by a former Russian ambassador to the United States.

General Pilsudski, commander of the Polish army, was said to have been advised by the allies to advance toward Moscow through Smolensk. But General Pilsudski, not wishing to be put in the position of being dominated, advanced towards Kieff. Thereupon, added the newspaper, the allies accused Poland of militarism and abandoned her.

The cabinet met today to consider the new situation created in Eastern Germany by the Russian advance. It was understood the ministry had decided to ask the allies to join in a firm note to Germany demanding the immediate recall of the Reichswehr from the Allenstein district. Premier Millerand points out that while the Russian Bolshevists have given assurances that they have no intention of invading Germany, the arrival of German troops on the East Prussian frontier places the Germans and Bolshevists in contact. This situation, he maintains, is filled with dangerous possibilities with the Russians and Germans so close to Warsaw.

RICH 'RED' SENT TO PRISON

Chicago Millionaire Given One to Five Years on Sedition Charges

Chicago, Aug. 3.—William Bross Lloyd, millionaire Communist party leader, and nineteen associates were convicted in criminal court here of sedition. The conviction was by a jury under the new Illinois statute which makes sedition a felony.

Lloyd's punishment was fixed at from one to five years in the penitentiary and a fine of $2,000.

Arthur Proctor, proprietor of a Chicago book store where radical literature was sold, was also given the same sentence as Lloyd—the maximum penalty.

Seven other defendants were given penitentiary sentences and fines ranging from $1,000 to $2,000 and eleven others were given jail sentences of one year.

The verdict was read after the jury had been out nine hours. The defense filed motion for a new trial and Judge Hebel announced it would be heard September 25. He ordered the defendants released on bonds.

The trial, consuming eighty-five days, followed a probe of more than six months which was conducted by private detectives employed by Chicago business men. Indictments had been issued for thirty-nine members of the Communist labor party but some of the men have never been found. Among them was John Reed, radical writer.

FLAGS WAVED AT JURY.

The trial was spectacular. Lloyd and his associates were compared by opposing attorneys to all types of men from Christ and Socrates to Benedict Arnold. Flags, both the American and the Red, were waved in the faces of the jurors. Also patriotic songs were sung for the effect they might have on the jury.

Many witnesses have been called, some of them prominent.

Ole Hanson, former mayor of Seattle, was on the stand for two days. He was called by the State in its effort to show the similarity between the radical strike in that city and the alleged activities of Lloyd.

The State sought to show that Lloyd and his comrades proposed to bring about in Chicago and the nation what the radicals of Seattle attempted.

DRAMATIC SCENE.

Vivid pictures of the Seattle strike, the riots, hunger suffering and suspension of business that accompanied it were drawn by Hanson and others, who were instrumental in putting down the uprising.

There was a dramatic scene in the court room just before the case went to the jury. The court's instructions lasted an hour.

Frank Comerford, special prosecutor, made a dramatic final plea for conviction.

Just the opposite picture was drawn by attorneys for the defense. They claimed the defendants were being persecuted instead of prosecuted. "Socrates was convicted by a jury under similar circumstances," cried one attorney. "He drank hemlock and history has been crying 'shame' ever since."

Lloyd was the central figure of the trial.

Great stress was laid by attorneys on his so-called "dynamite" speech at Milwaukee. Lloyd said the speech was made in an effort to be humorous. He was married secretly three years ago and has continued to introduce his wife by her maiden name with the prefix Miss by which she is still known to her friends.

THOSE SENTENCED.

Those receiving sentences of from one to five years were: William Bross Lloyd, Chicago; Ludwig Lore, New York; Arthur Proctor, Chicago; L. K. England, Moline, Ill.; Edgar Owens, Moline, Ill.; Nels Kjar, Chicago, and L. C. Katterfeld, Dighton, Kan.

Those receiving one year in the county jail were: Samuel Ash, Chicago; M. J. Christensen, Chicago; Edwin Firth, Indianapolis; Samuel F. Hankin, Chicago; Charles Krumbein, Chicago; Joseph Meisinger, Chicago; Karl F. Sandberg, Chicago; P. H. Shipman, Rock Island, Ill.; M. E. Stoler, Chicago, and John Vogel, Chicago.

Fines of $1,000 were given Jack Carney, Duluth, Minn., and Max Bedacht, San Francisco.

William B. Lloyd A Harvard Graduate

William Bross Lloyd is a son of the late Henry D. Lloyd, Boston social reformer and philanthropist, and a grandson of the late William Bross, once Lieutenant-Governor of Illinois. He is a graduate of Harvard.

Mr. Lloyd is a brother of Demarest Lloyd, prominent in the Loyal Coalition movement, and of John Bross Lloyd, remembered as defendant in a $150,000 breach of promise suit in Boston in 1914.

During his Harvard days the convicted "Red" was prominent in "Gold Coast" activities, and it was not until a few years ago that he became identified with radicalism.

He married Miss Lola Maverick of San Antonio, Tex., in 1902, and she divorced him in 1916, naming a Chicago woman.

Although describing himself as "the reddest of the red," serving as sergeant-at-arms of the Communist Labor party, Lloyd is a millionaire, and lives in Evanston, exclusive suburb of Chicago.

The first intimation Boston friends had that he was closely affiliated with radical propaganda was about a year ago, when he was fined $25 for starting a red flag commotion in Chicago.

SOMERVILLE RECTOR ASKED TO RESUME

The Rev. Cameron G. Richardson, rector of Christ Episcopal Church, Fellsway West, Somerville, who recently resigned in order to join his mother, who was ill at Charleston, S. MRS. COX GOES INTO 'MOVIES'

Learns How to Operate Camera to Take Pictures of Home and Baby Anne

By International News Service.

Dayton, O., Aug. 3.—Mrs. Cox, wife of Governor James M. Cox, Democratic presidential nominee, is going into the movies.

She will not, of course, be a competitor of Mary Pickford or Billie Burke, or any other star of filmdom. In fact, she will not be a movie actress at all, but nevertheless she is entering the motion picture game.

Today a professional cameraman gave Mrs. Cox her first lesson in the operation of a moving picture camera. It was a regular [illegible] goodness movie camera [illegible] used in many studios throughout the United States and is now the property of Mrs. Cox.

Mrs. John R. McLean, wife of the publisher of the Cincinnati Enquirer, gave it to Mrs. Cox not long ago when she and the Governor were visiting in Cincinnati. Mrs. McLean is an amateur photographer of note, and is said to have possessed at one time or another almost every sort of camera in existence.

Mrs. Cox plans to make a number of pictures showing scenes at Trailsend, the Cox country place near Dayton, and Anne, her eight-months-old daughter, is to be the "leading lady" in most of them.

Governor Cox spent the greater part of today at Trailsend, clearing up his correspondence. No conferences were scheduled, and the only outdoor relaxation the Governor expected is horseback riding this evening and a plunge in the swimming pool afterward.

Letters and telegrams continue to pour in on the Governor, many of them, he says, from independent Republicans "who are thoroughly dissatisfied with Senator Harding's speech of acceptance and his stand on the League of Nations."

EXPECT BIG RUSH OF WOMEN VOTERS

Owing to the expected rush of women to registrar and the large number of men who will appear to get on the voting list, the Somerville Registrars of Voters have appointed two assistant registrars, both from Ward 7, for the balance of the year. The new appointees are Frank H. Wilkins of No. 64 North street, a submaster in the Somerville High School, and James H. Waters of No. 14 Dow street, an examiner. Registration for the primaries has begun and will continue for three weeks.

RAILWAY FARES UP AUG. 20

Commuters Expected to Protest Vigorously When Prices Go Higher

New rates of fare on the railroads of the United States become effective on August 26.

The jump in freight rates allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission goes into effect five days later.

Passenger rates are going up 20 per cent. One can go to New York today—war tax included—for $7.43. Three weeks from today the same trip will set one back $8.92. Parlor car, sleeping car, excess baggage and milk-car rates go up with passenger rates on the 20th.

"UNNECESSARY" TRAVEL.

The new rate is expected to raise the price of milk. Some railroad men say it will decrease the amount of "unnecessary" travel. It will raise a howl of protest from the commuter, for twenty-five-ride and monthly tickets jump skywards along with everything else on the railroad bill of fare.

The average man can figure out for himself just how the new price will affect him by adding one-fifth to the present price of his ticket. The short Boston & Maine ride to Lynn, for example, will jump from 35 to 42 cents. It will cost 92 cents, instead of 77, to go to Lowell and 96 cents, instead of 80, to journey to Lawrence. In each case you add 8 per cent. war tax.

A trip to Fall River costs $1.30. The new price will be $1.56. The price of a ride to New Bedford will jump 34 cents, from $1.69 to $2.03; Worcester, from $1.33 to $1.59; Springfield, $2.95 to $3.55. Again, the war tax must be added to these figures.

MAJORITY USE AUTOS.

Summer folk, spending the vacation period on the Cape, along the Maine coast or in the mountains of New Hampshire, will pay more to get home—supposing that they travel on the old-fashioned railroad—than they paid going out. Perhaps not many of them are worrying. The bulk of Summer travel to the "resort" houses nowadays is by automobile.

One result of the new tariffs, some observers say, will be to increase the number of New England "flivvers." The father of the family, these observers reckon, will figure that he can keep a small car for the price of his railroad journeys. If these observers are half right, the increase in fares and freight rates will not have the result aimed at by the government and desired by railroad managers.

Lauck Warns of Profiteering Under R. R. Rate Increase

By International News Service.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Though the public may be spared higher costs of living by reason of the increased freight rates, through the absorption of the increases from excess profits, W. Jett Lauck, consulting economist for the railroad labor organizations, today warned the public not to let the profiteers boost prices further.

"In the data on profiteering presented by the railroad brotherhoods to the railroad labor board," he said, "it was shown that the corporations of the country were making excess profits to the extent of at least $4,800,000,000 annually. The great industries of the country could amply afford to deduct the increased freight charge from the price of their product, thus allowing the commodity to reach the retailer at the same prices as formerly.

"The public should not tolerate any action that would pyramid freight increases and make a pretext for further advance in prices. Because of the present abnormal prices and profiteering, the public should refuse to accept any further advances."

Julian H. Parmelee, chief statistician of the Bureau of Railway Economics, also warned the public against profiteers who will make the increase in freight rates a pretext for pyramiding the cost of living.

"The public alone can take the situation in hand," he said. "They should tell manufacturers, jobbers and retail dealers that prices are high enough and that they will tolerate no further advances. In most cases the dealers show a large enough margin of profit to absorb the increase without any impairment of legitimate profits."

PRESENT STATE OF HOLY LAND DUE TO MOSLEMS, SAYS NORDAU

Zionists Are Planning, Under British Mandate, to Irrigate Land, and Build Cities and Harbors.

When with the reign of Francois I. of France the Christians in Palestine began to be protected and backed by European powers they built a number of churches and monasteries, also a few hospitals and schools; and in the last half-century they founded the German agricultural colonies of Sarona and Wilhelma, near Jaffa. But this work, estimable as it is, was not sufficient to modify appreciably the general aspect of the country.

Its present state is due exclusively to the sorry to have to say it—to its Moslem inhabitants. There is neither prejudice nor injustice in laying the fault at their door if Palestine is now what it is. They alone had the control of it from the time of the Arab conquest in the seventh century to the Crusades, from the victory of Saladin over the Christian kings to the recent expulsion of the Turks by the English general, Allenby.

What have they done with the land which they alas proclaim holy to them?

It had been a garden in ancient times; they have allowed it to become a desert. The forests have been hewn down, and as a consequence of this waste the brooks and rivulets have dried up. There are more and finer cedars now to be found in the Jardin des Plantes of Paris, in front of the Prado Museum of Madrid and on some English estates, such as Cumberlandry Park in the London suburbs, than in the whole of the Lebanon and Antilebanon, where scarcely a presentable specimen of the beautiful tree is left.

BARREN WASTE.

Where there is water, as all along in the Jordan Valley, it forms one single pestilent swamp. Where there is none, the land is as barren as an asphalt pavement. The incomparable Roman roads have been allowed, through systematic neglect and want of elementary repairs, to deteriorate so as to disappear almost completely.

The only railway line existing in the country before the last campaign was the one from Jaffa to Jerusalem, built by and belonging to a Catholic religious order. There were no native schools, hospitals, cultural or charitable institutions of any kind.

As to agriculture, only 12 per cent. of Judea, that is to say the land between the Jordan with the Dead Sea and the Mediterranean, was under the plow, while 88 per cent. was allowed to remain fallow. The explanation of this is that the fellaheen only till small patches of the soil where nature is so luxurious and bountiful that she does the whole work, almost alone and requires scarcely any help from the hand of man.

There it is sufficient for the Arab peasant to scratch the surface of the ground with his pre-historic wooden plow in order to harvest crops which yield him six or sevenfold his seed, a result which he esteems highly satisfactory. But where the land would want draining, irrigating, deepplowing, manuring—in one word, modern scientific cultivation—the fellah een neglects it because he knows he is incompetent to administer such treatment.

PLANS OF JEWS.

Now we Jews are determined to change these obsolete methods radically.

We will drain the swamps and exterminate the malarial fever in the same way in which the Americans stamped out the yellow fever in Cuba, when they had the control of the pestilence but epidemic stricken island.

We will bring the necessary water supply to the places that thirst for it. We will build roads, normal and narrow gauge railroads and canals.

We will complete the harbor at Haifa, with all the appliances of an up-to-date seaport. We will introduce the most approved, most modern agriculture, produce grain, vegetables, fruit, wine and flowers and work the land in such a manner that on from 10 to twelve acres shall be able to support abundantly a family of five or six, with cattle and fowl.

We will reforest the mountains, clear the fields of scattered stone blocks, prospect for iron ore now also which we know to exist there, exploit the asphalt of the Dead Sea and create more hydro-electric power than we shall ever be likely to need, by utilizing the tremendous difference of level—some 1,200 feet—between the Mediterranean and the Jordan Valley, by means of a canal system to be constructed between the one and the other.

UNDERTAKINGS STARTED.

We will organize a complete system of public instruction, from the village school to the university, and add to it art schools, museums, libraries, theatres and an academy.

I write in the future tense, but many of these undertakings have already been realized. In a yet modest way, and all have been carefully studied out, and we will begin the intensive work as soon as two conditions have been realized, the raising of the huge sums of money indispensable for the purpose, and the obtaining of permission from the British government for large immigration and for settling the immigrants on unoccupied Crown lands, one depending on the other.

For as soon as we get free land and establish on it colonies, peopled by some hundreds of thousands of Jewish laborers, there will be a basis of national credit, and we will be able to procure the necessary funds by way of sufficiently guaranteed bonds.

If we can obtain the British approval of our projects, we are confident that in a few years we can make Palestine once more a prosperous country, not only self-supporting, but with a large surplus of national income, the pioneer of the most modern Western civilization to the Arab tribes and nations of the land between Europe and Asia, and a model of social justice and race harmony.

DEPEND ON BRITAIN.

But if we clash with political and administrative difficulties on the part of the mandatory power (Great Britain) which we cannot overcome, we shall be unable to proceed with our work.

In that case the San Remo treaty, as far as the Jews are concerned, will remain a scrap of paper. Palestine will not become the national home of the Jewish people, and it will continue to be what it now is—a neglected country without resources and without prospects, where there is neither honey, because it hardly contains a dozen bee hives, nor milk for lack of cows.

CHAPLIN'S WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE; TO QUIT FILMS

New York, Aug. 3.—Simultaneously with receipt of reports from Los Angeles that her attorneys had filed suit for her divorce from her husband, Mrs. Mildred Harris Chaplin, wife of Charlie Chaplin, announced that she intends to desert the movies for the legitimate.

Mrs. Chaplin is reported as charging the famous film clown with cruelty, but refused to discuss the divorce at all.

FIGHT EXPULSION BY IRISH FREEDOM FRIENDS

New York, Aug. 3.—Seven New York members of the Friends of Irish Freedom started a fight against expulsion when suit was brought seeking an injunction against the national executive committee from taking such action. The seven members include Jeremiah P. Maher and Catherine McHugh. They are alleged to have criticized the handling of funds by the national committee.

$200 Funeral for Pet Canary Bird

Newark, N. J., Aug. 3.—The door of the little shop of Emidio Buonamano, a sixty-five-year-old cobbler, was shut today for the first time in many years. A piece of crepe hung on the door. Inside Emidio, his wife, and their twelve children sat around a tiny coffin measuring 12 by 6 inches and lined with red silk.

Jimmie was dead.

Jimmie was a canary, who died trying to swallow a seed that was to be for his throat.

The whole neighborhood joined Emidio today in mourning and $200 was raised to give Jimmie a burial.

Tomorrow Jimmie will be buried in a vacant lot. In the funeral procession will be a hearse, five coaches of mourners and a fifteen piece band. After the interment arrangements will be made to erect a tombstone.

DEMAND AFRICA FOR AFRICANS

20,000 Negroes at Convention Told Whites Will Be Ordered Out

New York, Aug. 3.—"Africa for Africans" was the keynote of the opening meeting here of a thirty-day convention of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, held in Madison Square Garden. Twenty thousand delegates cheered as Marcus Garvey, organizer and head of the association, stood the exclusive right of Africa to its native land.

In the name of the organization a telegram was sent by Garvey to Eamon de Valera, endorsing the Irish fight for freedom, ending with the words, "Keep up the fight for a free Ireland."

The chief business of the convention will be to draw up a bill of rights and elect officers. Later meetings will take place in Liberty Hall, 138th street and Seventh avenue.

When Garvey, in the course of his address, referred to Belgium, hisses were heard all over the hall, a protest against the atrocities committed in the Congo during the reign of Leopold.

"We shall not ask England or France or Italy or Belgium why are you here?" said the speaker, referring to Africa. "We shall only command them, 'Get out of here!' What is good for the white man is good for the negro, we believe, and that is freedom, liberty and democracy. Two million black men were called out to fight that the world might enjoy the benefits of civilization, and 40,000,000 black men are ready to fight the battle of democracy on the fields of Africa. The bloodiest of all wars is yet to come when Asia shall match her strength against Europe for the domination of the world. That will be the negro's opportunity to draw the sword for the cause of African redemption."

To Possess The Buoyant Energy of Perfect Health—

Keep Your Blood Filled With Iron

Says Physician—Explains Why Plenty of Iron Keeps The Body Supple, Active and Full of Vigor—How

NUXATED IRON HELPS MAKE HEALTHY ROSY-CHEEKED WOMEN

To every woman who can no longer take an active interest in outdoor life, who lacks the strength to do the things she wants to do, and who has lost the sparkle and glow of her youth—there comes an eager desire at times to again possess the buoyant energy and perfect health of the red-blooded woman. Yet they go on struggling along in life, multiplying the lines in their faces, and adding signs of advancing years to their appearance, simply because they fail to keep their blood filled with strength-giving iron.

"The worn, listless expression on the face of many a young woman tells its own story," says Dr. Ferdinand King, New York Physician and Medical Author. "Anemia—lack of iron in the blood—has fastened its grip upon them and is sapping their health and vitality. For want of iron, a woman may look and feel old at thirty, pale, haggard, wrinkled and all run-down—while at fifty or sixty with good health and strength of iron in the blood she may be young at heart, be glowing in feeling and so full of life and attractiveness as to defy detection of her real age. Almost invariably in these cases I prescribe organic iron—Nuxated Iron—to enrich the blood and create thousands of new red blood cells, thereby helping to transform the flabby, colorless flesh into firm, healthy tissue. I have known Nuxated Iron to help build up weak, run-down women and give greatly increased strength and energy in many instances within only two weeks' time."

Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital, says: "I have seen frequent instances where Nuxated Iron gave renewed strength and energy, increased power and endurance, steady nerves and the rosy bloom of health in about ten days or two weeks' time. I consider Nuxated Iron one of the foremost blood and body builders—the best to which I have ever had recourse."

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. It is the ex-silor Nuxated Iron, results it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make black nor upset the stomach. Each tablet of pseudo Nuxated Iron is stamped as follows: "Nux Iron" and the words Nuxated Iron are stamped into each bottle, so that the public may not be deceived into accepting inferior substitutes. The genuine Nuxated Iron is always dispensed in original packages by every druggist or they will refund your money. It is advertised by all good druggists.

AMERICAN PRIZE SWIM AUG. 28

Girls Urged to Enter Early for Contest in Charles River Basin

Heads up, girls!

That is what the starter will say when he fires the shot that will set in motion the annual championship swim to be held under the auspices of the Boston American in the Charles River Basin, Saturday afternoon, August 28.

And then will come the "big splash" followed by the struggle for supremacy to gain the lead in the one and one-half-mile swim up and down stream and the thrilling enjoyment of being acclaimed winners of the first five prizes to be offered in the great contest.

The race is open to any girl in New England who feels that she has it in her to prove her mettle in as clean and as wholesome a sport known to humanity as a whole. All you have to do is fill out the blank on this page and either mail or leave it with the Swimming Editor. That will be an evidence of your good faith to enter the contest.

Measurements of the race course were taken today and show that it is just one and one-half miles and 760 feet. The start will be made from the raft of the Metropolitan Park Commission at the foot of Revere street, West End, up stream to a stake boat, near the Harvard bridge, turning at the left and then down stream to the starting point.

Down at Revere Beach Maffit Flaherty and his able corps of life guards are getting ready for the part they are to take in the big swim. They will act as guardians of the contestants while they are in the water. Precautions will be taken by them to save the girls from meeting with accidents. The moment a girl shows sign of fatigue and feels that she cannot continue the race she will be taken from the water by one or more of Flaherty's life guards and placed in a steam launch and cared for.

MORE HATS GO INTO RING

This Is Last Day for the Filing of Papers for State Primaries

Today is the last day for the filing of certified nomination papers or candidates for the Republican and Democratic nominations at the State primaries, September 7. Withdrawals or objections to nomination papers can be filed up to 5 p. m. Friday. Several Boston women, candidates for Republican House nominations, filed their papers.

Among those who filed papers with signatures enough to obtain places on the primary ballots were:

Congressman Samuel E. Winslow of Worcester, Republican candidate for renomination, fourth district; former Representative Ray B. Rideout of Somerville, one of the several candidates for the Republican congressional nomination in the ninth district; William H. Murphy of Brookline, who is opposing Congressman Robert Luce of Waltham for the Republican congressional nomination in the thirteenth district; James W. Murrick of Boston, a candidate for the Republican congressional nomination in the tenth district; Charles A. Dean of Wakefield and Maurice F. Ahern of Somerville, candidates for the Democratic congressional nominations in the eighth and ninth districts, respectively.

State Senator John J. Walsh of Boston filed additional papers as a candidate for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination. Richard H. Long of Framingham, the candidate in 1918 and 1918, has filed his papers and the understanding at Democratic State Committee headquarters was that William F. Fitzgerald of Hyde Park, a Boston broker, would make the total three.

Twenty Candidates in Hot South Boston Fight

It looks like old times in the Pemberton district with more than twenty candidates making a fight for legislative honors.

In Ward 6 it looms up as a battle royal with 12 aspirants seeking the nomination for two places. The latter include William P. Hickey, who is present member; James Twohig, J. McGlinsey, Fred Carroll, Joe Tomey, J. Connolly, M. Kendrick, Martin Martin, Jerome McMullin, Thomas Gaughen and several others.

In Ward 7, Lieutenant Paul Hines, a World War veteran, has thrown his hat in the ring, and will have such old timers as Robert Ware, Dan Casey, Joe O'Bryan, Tom Cook, the old narration runner; Monte Pole and Patrick Shannahan to beat out. Ward 7 has but two candidates to date, both of whom, John McCormack and Thomas Troy, are seeking re-election.

The fight for the Senatorial seat is represented South Boston promises to create a hot display with the scrappers of the "Billy" Mannix, Robert Bigney and "Hill" McDonnell line lined up in opposite directions. All three are just graduating from the House of Representatives. One Gallagher has also announced his candidacy and is being hailed as a dark horse and an added starter.

John F. Lodesh is making a second attempt to land in the Governors Council and is conducting an active campaign.

POTATO PRICE GOES LOWER

Sell Here at $3.48 a Bushel and in New York at About $3

Thanks to continued receipts of early potatoes from New Jersey and other fields the price of potatoes in Boston took another tumble today, but has not yet reached the lower level of New York.

One organization, which a chain of stores throughout the city, offered new potatoes at $7 cents a peck, or at the rate of $2.48 a bushel. This was almost on a level with the $3.50 price quoted by Faneuil Hall marketmen.

New York, Aug. 3.—Potatoes in chain grocery stores throughout Greater Boston were selling today at 3 cents a pound, or about $3 the bushel. Discouraged by the "low" price offered for them, many farmers in eastern Long Island were reported to have gone on strike.

Potatoes are one of the few commodities that have reflected the decline in the wholesale produce market. Buyers at Riverhead, L. I., were offering only $1.50 a bushel.

Farmers professed to believe that the low prices—some of them are feeding their cabbages and string beans to the hogs—will shoot upward again soon, and say they prefer to take a chance of the crop spoiling on their hands rather than sell at prices they consider below the cost of production.

BAND SHOOTS AT POLICEMAN

Believe One of Four Suspected Thieves Wounded in Exchange of Shots

A running gun fight between sergeants of an automobile believed by the police to be a band of thieves, and Patrolman Conkley of station 10, caused residents in the vicinity of Eliot square, Roxbury, early today. One of the band is believed to have been wounded.

Conkley saw the machine drawn up to the curbing at Millmont and Highland streets with lights extinguished and number plates removed, and four men standing on the sidewalk nearby. A merchant in the vicinity was recently waylaid, hit on the head with a blackjack and an attempt made to rob him.

As the policeman approached the quartet, intending to question them, one of their number opened fire with a revolver. The gunmen jumped into the machine, quickly followed by his companions, and the car was set in motion.

Conkley drew his revolver and shot at the fleeing auto three times. His fire was returned. Witnesses declare that as the machine passed out of sight they heard one of the occupants utter cry of pain.

DRUGGIST ROBBED.

The police claim the men occupying the machine have been operating in Roxbury for several days and have robbed two proprietors of small stores. George Bosworth of No. 1024 Tremont street, a druggist, was attacked by four men while en route to his home and robbed of $100 in cash and valuables. They followed him to his residence in an auto he says.

It is believed that the gang were waiting early today for a merchant living near the scene where they stalled their auto. The merchant is in the habit of carrying home with him the receipts of his day's business.

THE DEAF HEAR

I am a foreman on the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. and I had been deaf for a year or more so deaf I could not hear ordinary conversation, and the noises in my head were terrible, sounded like escaping steam and then again like bells ringing. They were so loud and persistent that I could hear not cease night or day. Mr. J. A. Eagle, 47 Academy Street, Meriden, Ct., had been a customer of our specialist named Dr. Blair, for a number of years and recommended him to me. I tried one of the great success of the Osmo-Chemic Physician's Home. Entering hearing is now loud to sound, and I applied to them for help, and they was so efficiently rendered that I can hear perfectly again and the noises have ceased.

VALUES built this Filene building, growing steadily from a "little hole in the wall" on Winter street.

Values built the long line of New England folks who have found that since Filene's first went into business "their dollars went further" at Filene's; values built this largest business of its kind in the United States, making possible still further specialization and still Better Values.

It is not to be wondered at that we do not change from a policy of value-giving which has builded so well for us. And that we have not changed and will not change is proved day in and day out by Filene Better Values all through this store, of the same quality as those values which built this business.

MARY YOUNG ON KEITH'S BILL

Noted Local Star Topliner With Billy B. Van and James J. Corbett

There are so many real top-liners at Keith's Theatre this week that even a press agent would have to draw lots to pick the sterling act.

A hearty welcome was given by the appearance in vaudeville of Mary Young, "Boston's Mary," who won a host of admirers at the classic square and they were on hand to give her a flattering welcome.

They were astonished to behold how slim and girlish Mary looked in the role of Barrie's of unconfidence are in 2 M. Barrie's "Rosalind." She is supported by Retha Blanchard and Harry Wardaff Griffith. The piece gave effective expression to her versatility.

Billy B. Van and James J. Corbett in "The Eighteenth Amendment" convulsed the house. Prohibition has made Billy funnier than ever. It has given him a new brew of comedy. The snappy, youthful appearance of "Gentleman Jim" astonished the audience. He looked the typical movie idol.

Meleta Bonconi, the violin virtuoso, was popular. Horace Goldin, the Russian musical magician, who made human bodies disappear with the ease that he produced goldfish, eggs and rabbits, had the audience gasping.

Bob Murphy and Elmore White in their "Happy Hunks and Laughs" made a hit as did Wilfred Du Bois with his novelty juggling. Harry Cooper in "Scenalogue," Coley and Jaxon in "The Minstrel and the Maid," and the El Rey Sisters in their superb skating acts.

Fireworks at Braves Field

This evening, at Braves Field, there will be given another big display of fireworks, similar to those that in the past have made "the home of big things" famous for its pyrotechnic performances. The program will be an elaborate one, with set pieces and aerial exhibitions on the big prohibitent places.

Tech's Band is booked for a program of popular hits from 7:00 o'clock to 8:30 o'clock at which hour the fireworks will start. In the event of rain the show will be given on the first pleasant night thereafter.

Sousa's Band Coming

Sousa and his band are on their way to Boston and at Northampton this evening they will give a concert at which Governor Coolidge is expected to be present, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce. Sousa, it is promised, will be introduced to the audience by the Governor. The band will reach Boston next Sunday, and in the afternoon will give a grand concert in Fenway Park, under the auspices of the famous "March King."

Voices for "Aida"

Emil Mollenhauer will hold a chorus rehearsal for the "Aida" production in Huntington Hall in the Rogers Building (old Technology), Boylston street, tonight. More than 800 singers from the Handel and Haydn, Choral Union, Apollo Club and other singing societies, as well as choir singers, attended the initial rehearsal last week, but Mr. Mollenhauer will receive additional voices tonight and Thursday. Tenors and basses will be particularly welcome.

Mental Expert Here

Deluged by letters from interested Bostonians anxious to witness the results he is able to obtain through his theory of the "unconscious consciousness," Joseph Dunninger, the mental expert, has been prevailed upon to give a series of demonstrations in mind reading at Steinert Hall, beginning Thursday evening.

Pemberton Inn

Pemberton Inn, the de luxe place for dancing, entertainment and dining of the fashionable South Shore, continues to attract those in search of food and pleasure amid ideal surroundings.

Other Theatres

ORPHEUM THEATRE—Yesterday's program at Loew's Orpheum Theatre was topped by Bernivici Bros., who offered a spectacular musical novelty, "A Night in Venice", Russell and Drew, who have gained friends by their work on the screen, appeared in a clever one-act comedy, "Ha, Ha, Ha," with a wealth of fun and laughter. Other acts on the bill were Mack and Dean, offering an abundance of fun and frivolity; Dave and Lillian, singing and acrobatic dancing novelties; Asaki, the Jap juggler on skates, and the clever Thomas Bros. in daring and thrilling gymnastic feats. The topline photoplay attraction was "The Gift Supreme," with an all-star cast headed by Bernard Durning.

GORDON'S OLYMPIA—When three women claim one man for a husband, it is bound to create trouble. When he really loves one of them, his explanations in regard to the other two are bound to be funny to any one not involved. Also, when it develops that the other two wouldn't have him for a husband on a bet, their reasons for claiming him are interesting. Of such complications is the humorous, interesting Marshall Neilan production, "Don't Ever Marry," which is the attraction at Gordon's Scollay Square, Olympia and Gordon's Olympia, Washington street, this week.

PARK THEATRE — Marguerite Clark is a double deceiver in her newest Paramount Artcraft film, "Widow by Proxy," which opened for a two days' run at the Park Theatre last night.

UPHAM'S CORNER STRAND—May Allison, starring in "The Cheater," thrilled a big audience yesterday at the first showing in Dorchester of this feature photoplay at Gordon's Strand, Upham's Corner.

GORDON'S OLD SOUTH—Nathan H. Gordon announces to all amusement lovers that the Old South Theatre will soon be added to the big chain of Gordon theatres. One hundred and fifty artists and decorators are working day and night to make this an amusement palace. The theatre will be reopened Monday, August 9, at 9 a. m., with a great Saturday Evening Post story, "The Yellow Typhoon," featuring Anita Stewart.

MODERN AND BEACON—The dash and color for which Robert W. Chambers' society novels are famous is present in the screen version of "The Fighting Chance," probably his greatest book, which came to the Modern and Beacon Theatres last evening.

CAMBRIDGE CENTRAL SQUARE—May Allison, starring in "The Cheater," thrilled a big audience last night at the first showing of this Metro feature photoplay at Gordon's Cambridge Central Square Theatre. Miss Allison sounded a new note of intense feeling that stamped her as an artist of exceptional power.

Plays That Remain

TREMONT THEATRE—It would appear as though local theatregoers realised fully that the "Mary" engagement is not going to close judging by the frantic rush there is on their part to attend its delights.

TREMONT TEMPLE—Helen Keller, in the film play beautiful built around her life story, "Deliverance," continues to charm capacity audiences at Tremont Temple.

SPURNED SUITOR SHOOTS GIRL

North End Man Then Ends Own Life As Officers Seek Him

Because of her refusal to marry him, according to the police, Amos De Vito of the North End shot and seriously wounded Miss Evelyn Carbonneau, thirty-one years old, of No. 61 Adams street, Malden, and then shot himself through the right temple.

Miss Carbonneau will recover, Relief Hospital surgeons say, but De Vito died in the ambulance on the way to the hospital.

Both De Vito and Miss Carbonneau were employed by De Vito's brother, John A. De Vito, at his paper stock press and rags concern at No. 286 Commercial street.

HIGGINSON CATTLE GOING TO BRAZIL

Lincoln, Aug. 3.—Jorge Baretto of Brazil has purchased from A. Henry Higginson of Middlesex Meadows, South Lincoln, ten head of Ayrshire cattle. The animals were sired by Lew Milton, Iron Duke, Bargenoch Laddie, Netherhall Keystone, Holeland Record Pierce and Baron's Rest of Bargenoch. A young bull was shipped some weeks ago to Colombia, South America, by Captain Higginson.

Coming Events

SHUBERT THEATRE—Tickets will go on sale Thursday for the Kaufman Producing Corporation's hon lion mot-ogly play, "Kissing Time," which will be seen at the Shubert Theatre beginning August 9.

PARK SQUARE THEATRE—The public seat sale for the Arc Boston presentation of H. H. Frazee's production of America's greatest comedy, "My Lady Friends," went on sale at the box office or Selwyn's Park Square Theatre, where his refreshingly delightful comedy will inaugurate the season with the Selwyns' popular playhouse on next Monday evening. "My Lady Friends" comes to Boston fresh from its triumph in New York city, where it attained an all season's run.

At the Parks

PARAGON PARK—Paragon Park and its famous Palm Garden continue to be the mecca for visitors by their wealth of novel and pleasing features. The big cabaret show of the Palm Garden changed weekly, includes a number of stellar vaudeville acts, which are also shown outside in the park itself.

NORUMBEGA — Manuel Romaine, the famous lyric tenor, accompanied by "That Trio," talented instrumentalists, and Lewis and Henderson, novelty musicians, are the remarkable line musical attractions which have been added to the concert orchestra of twelve solo musicians on the long and pleasing musical and photoplay program at Norumbega Park this week.

ILL VETERANS TO BE SEGREGATED

War Risk Bureau to Gather Sick and Wounded Into Government Hospitals

Washington, Aug. 3.—Disabled ex-service men in need of hospital treatment for wounds, injuries or disease incurred in the World War are to be gathered into hospitals owned and controlled by the government within the next year.

This transfer of patients from private hospitals and hospitals only partially controlled by the government, constitutes part of a general plan of the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, authorized by recent legislation, to concentrate the invalid and convalescent veterans in institutions in which the government claims it will be able to discharge its obligation to them of better and more specialized treatment.

Director R. G. Cholmeley-Jones of the bureau, acting in co-operation with the United States Public Health Service, announces that as soon as already existing accommodations have been taken over, adapted and suitably equipped by the government, every effort will be made to encourage the transfer of patients unless the men are not in condition to be moved.

The wishes of the men are to be consulted, but purely personal reasons will not be allowed to cause a change in the program. One investigation proves that they would benefit by such a changed environment.

BAN 'JAKEY' SALE BY DRUGGISTS

Allen Rules Pharmacists May Lose Licenses if Liquor Is Sold as Beverage

Attorney-General J. Weston Allen has handed down an opinion in which he warns druggists that the sale of "Jakey" may cost them their pharmacy licenses if it is proved that the liquor was sold as a beverage.

"If, by your question, you mean to imply that the druggist is selling tincture of Jamaica ginger, knowingly, for beverage purposes," he observes in reply to the query from Leon C. Ellis, secretary of the board of registration in pharmacy, "he would then be selling in violation of the Volstead act, which, having been passed to enforce the 18th amendment of the Federal constitution, is the law of the land and so a part of the law of this commonwealth, for violation of which your board could, after conviction, suspend a license or certificate of registration in pharmacy.

"Furthermore, if the druggist is knowingly selling tincture of Jamaica ginger as a beverage, he is violating the law of the commonwealth because, even it contains passed to enforce the 18th amendment of the Federal constitution, is the law of the land and so a part of the law of this commonwealth, for violation of which your board could, after conviction, suspend a license or certificate of registration in pharmacy.

"Furthermore, if the druggist is

At the Seashore

Do tan, sunburn, pimples and insect bites deprive you of the real joy of a day at the seashore?

In most cases, unaccustomed exposure to the sun and water do cause skin blemishes to appear—but all these can be quickly and easily removed with the proper treatment.

BLACK AND WHITE BEAUTY TREATMENT

is highly recommended to you. It consists of two well-known toilet preparations, BLACK and WHITE Soap and BLACK and WHITE Ointment—both ideal aids in removing tan, sunburn, freckles or any discolorations caused by neglect or exposure. BLACK and WHITE Soap is pure and delicately perfumed. It is guaranteed to cleanse, refresh and preserve the tenderest skin and must always be used in connection with BLACK and WHITE Ointment to secure satisfying results.

As a blemish remover—a skin beautifier, BLACK and WHITE Ointment is unequaled. It not only removes tan, sunburn, pimples and insect bites, but whitens and softens dark, sallow complexions and imparts a glow of youth so much desired. From the very first application you will note a change, and if faithfully used, your reward will be an altogether attractive skin, free from any blemish.

Any first-class druggist can supply you with BLACK and WHITE Ointment, 50c and 25c the package; BLACK and WHITE Soap 25c a cake.

FOOD PRICES SMASHED

MILLIONS OF CANS OF MEATS AT BELOW PRE-WAR PRICES.
The War Department is offering to the American Public

Roast Beef - Corned Beef - Corned Beef Hash - Bacon

at prices even lower than pre-war quotations despite the fact that the cost of foodstuffs has increased nearly 300% in seven years.

How the Public Has Responded:
The American Public has literally jumped at this opportunity to save itself hundreds of thousands of dollars. The Office of the Director of Sales has received hundreds of telegrams and letters from the Mayors of many cities, the presidents of large industrial corporations, the heads of large wholesale distributing establishments, department stores, grocers, hotels, institutions, and other fields of business inquiring for definite information regarding the sale of these meats.

The sale of these meats—the most palatable, the most nutritious and the most carefully packed canned meats in the world, has not only placed them upon the tables of American tables, for breakfast, luncheon, dinner, or supper, but it has aided the Government in its campaign to reduce the cost of living.

You will find at hotels and cafes, on dining cars, on Government orders to their dealers, in the dining rooms of thousands of homes, in picnic lunches, and in dinner pails, these Government canned meats. You will find them a part of the daily menu of hundreds of thousands who knew CORNED BEEF, CORNED BEEF HASH, AND CANNED ROAST BEEF, only as a name until this big War Department Campaign was started.

The effect of this sale on food costs in general will be tremendous and the dealers who appreciate this are the ones who are selling these meats. They are performing a great public service in helping to reduce the cost of living. The American People in every community, irrespective of size, have a right to expect their dealer to co-operate with the Government in this movement.

What This Means to the Dealer:
The merchant who is alive to this opportunity, who takes full advantage of the general publicity and the co-operative advertising which the Government supplies, will be immensely benefited not only by the fair margin of profit which he makes on these sales, but by the creation of a good will of untold value and the unquestioned influence in the making of other sales throughout his store.

THE TIME TO BUY IS NOW:
These canned meats are not being offered for export. The Government wants the American People to benefit by the low prices at which these goods will be wholesaled. Dealers in every city, town and village should sell these meats. If they haven't them, they can get them either from the Government direct or through their wholesaler.

It is the purpose of the Government to dispose of these meats preferably in trainload or carload lots, and special quantity discounts are granted on large purchases. It is possible, however, for even the smallest dealer to purchase these commodities, since the Government will accept orders as low as $250.00.

Housewives are advised to buy these meats by the case. They were packed by the best packers of North and South America under strict Governmental supervision—only the choicest cuts of meats were selected and a guarantee of the Government both as to quality and condition is behind every single can.

ATHLETES SUFFER FROM COLD AND FEVER IN TRIP TO OLYMPICS

BIG PARADE FOR BOYS IN ANTWERP

Military Drill Now Part of Daily Routine on Board the Matoika

By CHARLES E. PARKER,
Correspondent of the Boston American With the Olympic Athletes.

On Board U. S. S. Princess Matoika, by Wireless, Aug. 3.—Colds, attended in some instances by slight fever, have developed among the American athletes bound for the Olympic games since the Princess Matoika has gotten in the North Atlantic and encountered raw, chilly weather.

None of the men is in serious condition and all are expected to be fit by the time the ship arrives at Antwerp.

Military drill to initiate the athletes into the evolutions of the international parade at Antwerp is now a part of the daily routine.

The men are formed into two companies, one under Major Graves and the other under Lieut. Vial. They are learning the formations quickly and make a fine appearance. Many of the men served in the United States army and are familiar with the tactics.

The leak in the boiler has now been repaired, and the ship making her normal speed.

Matt McGrath sustained a few bruises in a wrestling match with Paddy Ryan. Both weighed about 186 pounds and when Ryan worked a "head spin" both went to the mat with a terrific crash.

BIG FOUR TO CONTEST IN BRASSARD RACE

The big four of the motor-paced game will come together in the second running of the Brassard at the new Revere cycle track tomorrow night and the fans who are strong for the long distance events are in for a real battle of the speed kings.

Manager Butler has signed Wiley, Chapman, Carman and Madonna for the one-hour grind and with all four going at top speed some new figures may be hung up for the hour.

ACTION APLENTY AT TRIPLE A

Fight Fans Should Get Just What They Desire In Martin-Sharkey Bout

By JACK CONWAY.

Boston and New England fight fans, who have been obliged of late to satisfy their desire for excitement by reading about Babe Ruth's spectacular batting, will receive an opportunity to witness a regular battle this evening when Jack Sharkey meets Terj. Martin in a twelve-round bout at the Arena A. A's show at Mechanics' Building.

It is one of the big ring bookings of the year. Interest in Sharkey and Martin are both two-fisted fighters, it looks as though the fans would witness a torrid engagement.

When Sharkey showed here a few months ago against Abe Friedman he convinced all that he is a busy worker in the ring. He keeps piling in on top of his opponent at all times. This is a rather successful line of campaign, as the New Yorker packs a man's sized wallop in each hand.

Of course the big thing in Sharkey's ring corner was his victory over Jimmy Wilde at Milwaukee last Winter. Anybody who can wallop the Britisher need not worry about getting a serious setback no matter how fast the company may be.

Martin Confident of Beating Sharkey

Martin believes he will dispose of Sharkey this evening. A whole lot of good judges on things pugilistic agree with the opinion held by the New England champion. What's more, they plan to back him with big bundles of cash. It would not be surprising if Martin went to the post a slight betting favorite. He'll be an even money proposition at least.

The Providence boy has piled up a creditable array of victories. Slugs defeating Joey Fox, he has handed setbacks to Bobby Dyson, Abe Friedman and some other tidy performers. Terry intends to force the issue tonight and avers he will be well out in front when festivities end. The winner will be in line for matches with Pete Herman and Jimmy Wilde.

Al Delmont, oldtime bantamweight, will referee. He is honest and fearless and has the confidence of the fans.

Harry Martin, brother of Terry, will oppose Johnny Reisler of New York in the semi-final of eight rounds. There will also be two sixes.

PROCEEDS OF GAME FOR WOUNDED SERVICE MEN

Wounded service men at the Parker Hill Hospital will receive the proceeds of a game between teams representing the U. S. S. Savannah and the Washington All-Stars to be played Friday afternoon at Fenway Park.

LOADMAN BATTLES JOSEPHS TO A DRAW

Portland, Me., Aug. 3.—Dick Loadman of Lockport, N. Y., and Bobby Josephs of Boston boxed a double six-round bout last night. Loadman did better in the first half, but in the last six rounds Josephs had the advantage.

Vardon Has Plans to Shorten Matches

By ROBERT E. HARLOW

Harry Vardon and Ted Ray, the British golfers, rode from Deal Beach to New York Sunday night last on a train with a large number of American golf enthusiasts who had witnessed the Englishmen in their match at the Holly Wood Club with Walter Hagen and Jim Barnes.

The Englishmen were not very talkative. They answered a few questions concerning their tour.

Vardon said that he did not consider it wise in a four-ball, best-ball match for the players who were out of the hole out for medal score. Those who have followed Vardon and Ray have noticed that they do not try for short putts when one or the other has already completed a hole in as few shots as it would be possible for the other to score.

Best Ball Different From Medal

"Best-ball play," said Vardon, "is entirely different from medal play. It delays the match and takes interest away from it if every player holes out at each green. A best-ball match is a team play affair and partners very often play entirely differently from what they would attempt if they were out to bring in a low medal round.

"Suppose a golfer had made a par four on a hole and his partner then had a four-foot putt to also get a four. He could pick up and be ready to play the next hole with nothing on his mind but that one thing. On the other hand, if he putted and missed, it very likely would affect his play at the next hole in such a manner as to injure his side."

Will Make No Effort to Better Partner's Score

Although special prizes have been offered for new course records in many of the exhibition matches in which the Englishmen have competed they have seldom holed out at each green. If Ray has a three tucked away when Vardon is on the edge of the green in two, Vardon does not use up his energy in attempting to sink his long putt or put it on dead for a four. Neither the three nor the four would do his side any good.

Ted Ray holed out all his shots at Holly Wood, but it appeared to be his desire to beat Walter Hagen than his desire to get the special prize for a new record, which prompted him to do it. He and Hagen were engaged in a very hot individual battle and were shooting along in par without more than a shot separating them. Walter holed everything and they followed suit. Hagen finished with a 70 and Ray with a 71 and they both got a bonus of $100 for breaking the course record, which was 72.

Englishmen Miss the 16th Hole

Vardon and Ray said very frankly that they missed the nineteenth hole. Vardon said it was much pleasanter to step into the nineteenth and get a glass of ale at the completion of a round, than to be forced to "scurry around for a drink." Not that Vardon and Ray are heavy drinkers. They are not, but they enjoy a bottle of ale after a round on the course. Vardon said if he came back to America again, the Federal laws might prevent Ray bringing his famous pipe along.

Vardon and Ray said that American galleries have treated them kindly and maintained proper golfing decorum while they have played their shots. Vardon said that the spectators stood a bit too close for dayssometimes, but he realized they were anxious to see the shots executed and that this accounted for their eagerness.

When someone remarked to Vardon that the gallery should not stand around a green when shots were being played up to it and reminded the Briton of a shot he had hit that afternoon at the thirteenth green which struck a woman's dress and came back on the green giving him a putt for a three, he said smartly:

"Mine wasn't the only one, was it."

Vardon referred evidently to one of Hagen's wallops which struck a spectator on the shoe, preventing the ball from rolling into a trap.

When asked how he could account for the vast differences in the splendid play of Hagen at Holly Wood and in the British open at Deal, Vardon replied.

"Hagen appeared to be a puller at Deal. He is hitting the ball straight out now. He played his shots entirely differently here than at Deal. He has learned how to hit the ball differently since he returned."

Vardon never saw Hagen before he played at Deal in June.

Note Improvement in American Golf

The five-time British champion said that he and Ray noted a great improvement in American golf courses since their last visit here in 1913. They said they were surprised that there were so few sandy courses in the United States, as practically all championship contests in England were held on the links by the sea, such as Deal, Sandwich and St. Andrews. They said it helped golf in England for Americans to play in the championships on the other side.

Ray was interested in the special trains of ten cars which he was riding on, as every seat was filled with people who were returning from a day at the New Jersey beaches. This caused Ray to say that he thought "workingmen had a right to play golf" and that there ought to be more municipal courses in England as well as in America."

Sees Public Courses All Over England

"I fancy," he said, "that here will be public courses in all English towns before many years. I warrant the Briad Hills in Edinburgh, Scotland, a public links, were crowded from dawn to dark today. I predict that not more than 25 per cent. of the population of England and America can afford to play golf now. Everybody should be able to play."

The golfers appeared pleased that they were furnishing American galleries with enjoyment. They said the Belmont crowd was by far the largest they had seen on their tour. They did not comment on their match with Ouimet and Guilford, but were interested to hear that the Country Club course, Brookline, was in splendid condition, and said they anticipated playing there in September.

When someone told Ray he ought to go well in the United States open championship at Toledo, he said:

"You never can tell, golf is a funny game, you know."

YOUNG WATSON BRAVES HOPE

Stallings Pins Faith in Recruit to Take Fall Out of Pirates

By NICK FLATLEY.

That surprising youth, John Watson, was booked to appear once more before the Boston baseball populace today and make up for the defeat that the Pittsburgh Pirates handed the Braves yesterday. John, bye and large, whatever that means, has proved to be quite a flinger in his four victories he has annexed since becoming a wigwamer.

He has made a decided impression on hostile managers and athletes as well as on the home folks. Manager Mitchell of the Chicago Cubs who twice were trimmed by our Jim, ventured to remark the other day that the young man was as cool and clever a performer as the novice ranks had boasted in many a day.

John hasn't got the stuff that some of the heavers pack, but his worlds of control and poise, of courage, and those little things are at least as valuable as all the curves and fast ones in the well known world. Any pitcher who can stick the ball where he wants it is hard to hit.

Ponder Will Have Chance Against Watson

Twas Manager Mitchell who noticed that John in his two games against the Cubs was always pitching to a hitter's weakness and that he never seemed to be off the line. Manager Mitch naturally notices little things like that, being more or less in the business of trying to win a pennant.

So if John can continue to exhibit that uncanny control and fortitude and nonchalance and all the rest of it, victory will very likely perch on the Brave banners once more. And before many years are necessary to make said banner balance.

Manager Barrow is handed, who has tossed himself into a regular pitching job with the Pirates, was the enemy first choice, unless Manager Gibson decided at the last moment that a southpaw would bother the off-side hitters of the Braves, and stuck Hamilton back.

SOX CAN LOSE BUT 1 TODAY

Tigers Flash in Double-Header Just Enough to Best Barrow Band

Detroit, Aug. 3.—In his effort to make the present series with the Tigers two all, Manager Barrow of the Red Sox trotted out Pitcher Sam Jones, with Herb Pennock held in reserve, today. The Tigers are putting up a much faster article of baseball just now than on any previous occasion that they faced the Bostonians and the latter must extend themselves to get the better of the series which ends tomorrow.

The Red Sox were unfortunate victims in both ends of the double header, losing the first 5 to 0, but coming back strong in the second, losing only by an eyelash in the ninth inning after two were out. The twilight encounter, which ended 2 to 1 against the Sox, was brilliantly played and was dropped only because Flagstead got a lucky double just out of Vitt's reach. Unfortunately for the Sox, Ty Cobb and Bobby Veach were on the bases at the time and both scored.

There has not been a more brilliant contest on Navin Field this year than was this struggle. For eight innings the two teams battled along on even terms without either side getting very near to a tally. Harry Harper until that time was invincible.

The Sox had crossed the plate in the ninth by virtue of Hooper's hit, Schang's sacrifice and Karr's single. The Tigers doubled it in their half. Bush whirled and Cobb beat out an infield single, his first hit of the game. Veach attempted to sacrifice, but forced Bush at third. Heilman flied to Hooper and Cobb went to third. Veach was allowed to steal second, and then Flagstead shot a double to left just over third base and the necessary two runs were over.

Shuman and Butler are scheduled to meet tonight at North Station at 7 o'clock. Player-Shuman has not been going exceptionally well in its past two games, but Manager Raftery is in hopes of coming through in this contest. Others with in two new men in the Shuman lineup. Davis will take Tom Raftery's place at centre field and Houston will be behind the bat in place of Murphy, who has a sore arm. Buckley will pitch for Shuman and McLeod will work for Butler.

Manager Jimmy O'Neil, of White, announces that the game to be played between Harrington and McArthur as officials for the game Thursday this week is impossible the game will be played at Soldiers Field.

Joe McDonald, of White, has the satisfaction of being the only pitcher in the league to have defeated both Tom Raftery and Jimmy O'Neil. Raftery took the second game of Harrington and McArthur as officials for the game Thursday this week is impossible the game will be played at Soldiers Field.

It seems as if the whole league is after the Talbot nine and Pitcher Jim Murray in particular. In the Shuman Talbot game a couple of days ago Murray was invited to pitch for the Shumans and Manager Houston made the same offer for the coming Talbot game. The first offer will be well earned.

Billy Kilfoy, first sacker for R. H. Whites, has been playing his position almost perfectly only one error has been marked against him this season.

Tom Raftery has decided to stay out of the race, two games and rest up for the big ones which are coming. His two sixes Butlers the Shepards this week and next and he is confident that two wins will be marked up for his nine. Max Davis will take his place in centre field.

"THERE is no one like Julian," said Teodora; "he is nobility itself, and yet, Ernesto, I seem to shudder; I see dark hours ahead; I am afraid of shadows, of something I cannot define, but something that I know exists."

The young man took her hand and carried it gallantly to his lips, and as he did so Don Severo stepped before his brother and found him pale, staring, convulsed with emotion.

"Ah, my brother, you have discovered something!" he asked hopefully.

"Yes, they are in there—the world has reason."

"You should have sent him away last night; your kind heart got the better of your judgment. But it is not too late to tell him."

Don Julian rose.

"Or, better still, I will ask him to step in here."

Julian nodded, resumed his chair, and Severo departed. The poet and Teodora were shoulder to shoulder as the emissary arrived. They started when they heard him, and their start was interpreted by him as another proof of their duplicity.

His bearing was not lost on the two young people. Instinctively they looked at each other, interpreting his insulting attitude as something surprising ill for both.

Don Severo hardly noticed the wife. He bowed to Ernesto in his most punctilious manner. "My brother desires the honor of your presence."

His tone gave the impression of a sneer, innocent as the words were. Half-concealed triumph was in his face as Ernesto rose and preceded him to the library of his patron.

Don Julian's face still bore marks of the mental anguish occasioned by the partially overheard conversation. So pale, so haggard he seemed that the young man in a voice of pity cried aloud.

The other lifted his arm. "It is better that you go—you were right last night—you had best go."

The young man stared. What had occasioned this reversal of words? What subtle influence had changed Julian from the man who protested his friendship to the one who doubted? Was there any use to ask? Would any explanation mend the result? Had the poet himself had prophesied, that Teodora had felt like a dark shadow?

He realized his helplessness, and Julian, seeing in his eyes still only loyalty, rose and left the room. Not again would he be carried away by a foolish fondness for this boy; he had been mistaken once, but not again.

With a heavy heart the poet made his way to his own room, there to collect his few belongings. And Julian heard him ascend the stairs as he faced Severo and Mercedes, waiting the issue of his interview.

He was still pale, but dynamic force pervaded him; he turned on them fiercely. "You thieves, you assassins, you have stolen from me the vision of my heart, you have killed the honor of my soul."

"Julian," his brother, strove to pacify him; the other brushed him away and walked rapidly out of the room.

"He is in excited," said the woman. "He is probably going to tell Teodora what he has done. I wonder if the young man confessed?"

Julian looked for his wife; he was burdened with a feeling of injustice, but, over, all, he was bitten with the serpent fangs of jealousy. His peered into the studio, the chairs in which his wife and the poet had sat were side by side. Another pang; he could not find here a terrible fear came over him that she might have run away; that she might have overheard him when he ordered Ernesto to go. Such are the punishments of suspicion.

There came to him voices from the little sanctuary where stood the altar before which he and Teodora had been wedded. He peered inside, bowing his head; his eye grew accustomed to the darkness, and he saw before the altar the form of Teodora, praying, and beside her the maid Maria, whose faith remained firm.

As though he had intruded on a holy secret, Julian turned precipitately out of the chapel, leaving his wife to have her soul in the God of understanding.

In his room Ernesto welcomed Captain Wickersham, now a frequent caller, and tried in vain to explain the reason for his hurried preparations.

Wickersham nodded and said nothing; he had heard more than enough to justify a suspicion of the real reason for his friend's going. "I am burning my bridges behind me, Captain," said Ernesto with a sigh, taking a bundle of papers from the table and thrusting them into the grate.

"You Spaniards take life too seriously," laughed the Captain, "and now you've burned your bridges whither away?"

To Be Continued To-morrow.

In "The World and His Wife," the new motion picture in which the evil effects of gossip on the happiness of a loving couple are vividly portrayed, Alma Rubens, as Teodora, gives a stirring portrait of the sufferings of the wife unjustly suspected. In this scene she is listening to the cajoling words of Mercedes, who thinks she will wring from her a confession of love for the young poet.

When Hearts Are Trumps

By Virginia Terhune Van de Water

CHAPTER XLII.

WHEN a man drives his own car, with two girls as passengers, it is difficult to decide how to park.

If he asks the girl he likes best to share the front seat with him that leaves his other guest alone in the tonneau.

Such was John Brandon's predicament this afternoon. But Barbara spared him the awkwardness of arranging matters.

"Matilda, you sit in front with Mr. Brandon," she directed. "I will get in behind."

"Oh, no," Matilda began, but Barbara cut short further argument by springing into the rear of the car.

"I like it back here," she affirmed, "and I can sit in front any time."

Then, as Brandon hesitated, she glanced at the clock on the cupola of the garages nearby.

"It is growing late and we must get off. Let us start, please."

"But I want to be with you," Matilda insisted, stepping into the car by Barbara. "Now we're ready."

Without a word John Brandon took the wheel and drove the automobile out of the gate and along the smooth road leading back to town.

"That was not a very kind thing of you, Bab," Matilda reproved, sotto voce. "If Mr. Brandon were a quick-tempered man he would rate me."

"Well, he doesn't," her companion reminded her.

During the ensuing silence Barbara grew more and more uncomfortable. Where she had taken the rear seat she had not realized that she was ungracious to the man who loved her. Now, however, she began to reflect on the fact that it could not be pleasant for him to serve as chauffeur while both of his guests were too far from him to engage in conversation with him. Well she would make it up to him as soon as he had left Matilda at her destination. Fortunately, the Chambers home would be reached some minutes before they would come to the Paige house.

He was a careful driver, yet now he drove his car at a rate that was much more rapid than that usual Barbara, watching him, knew that he was vexed and was expressing the irritation by his unwonted speed.

As the Chambers house came into view, Barbara spoke impulsively to her friend.

"Matilda—congratulate John when you get out—won't you?"

"Why?" was the prompt reply.

So as Brandon held out his hand to help Matilda Chambers alight, he spoke congratulations.

"Mr. Brandon—Bab was told me of her happiness and yours. I congratulate you both, and wish you lots of joy."

The gleam of light that came to the Brandon's eyes astonished both the onlookers. So, he thought swiftly, that was why Barbara sat with her friend—that she might tell her of her engagement! And she had accidentally spoken of being sure

MY Daughter, there is a place where all the BORES of the world are gathered together!

Lo, it is the Summer Resort, the Kingdom of ennui and bluff—the Land of skimmed milk and artificial honey!

Behold, there wilt thou find the pests and the poseurs alike.

There wilt thou find the Professional Optimist in all his glory.

He goeth about wearing a maddening smile and a Pollyanna expression. He seeketh to scatter sweetness and light in dim romantic corners, where darkness and solitude are preferred. He interrupteth the piazza reparties with platitudes, and breaketh into the flirtation with sermonettes on "cheer."

He saith: "It's a beautiful world!"

He is as welcome as a pet mosquito.

There will thou find the Amateur Humorist.

Lo, he "ducketh" the timid ladies in the water, and grabbeth the ankles of the fearful damsels beneath the waves. He putteth sand in the shoes of the unwary, and splattereth the hand-made complexion of the Hotel Beauty.

Yea, he is SO funny.

There wilt thou meet the self-appointed Society Sponsor.

She draggeth the seeker of solitude from his lair, and introduceth "EVERYBODY unto everybody else." She presenteth the damsel to her last year's "discard" and the divorcee unto her ex-husband without mercy.

She is exceeding KIND!

There will thou find the "Woman Tamer"—even the hewer of hearts and drawer of glances, who poseth upon the piazza in stunning white flannels and a bored expression. He chatteth idly of his "yawt" and his "motah-cah." He stiteth afar, and "stareth up" the damsels, and permitteth the prettiest of these to LOVE him.

He is SO irresistible.

There will thou encounter the Human Newspaper.

She ariseth at dawn, and peepeth around corners, that she may miss nothing. She spreadeth the scandals free of charge. She keepeth tabs upon the comings and outings and flirtings of the damsels, and appraiseth the matron's diamonds. The coolings of the newlyweds, and the quarrels of the long-married do not escape her.

She is SO efficient—

Verily, verily, the Summer resort is a place where a man will resort to anything for amusement, a damsel will resort to anything for attention, and a sane human being would cheerfully resort to murder!

Where a woman spendeth half her days making herself alluring—and the other half in searching for something to "lure."

Where there is no peace, no rest, and NO escape from BOREDOM!

Yet, each year, do we forget the torments and the horrors of the year before, and gird up our loins and our wardrobe trunks for another season of "recreation"!

The Engagement Ring

"Yes, she answered. "Anywhere you like."

His reason for suggesting the "little turn" was evident when they reached a secluded spot on the outskirts of town.

Stopping the car, John drew from his vest-pocket a small jewelry-case and, opening it, revealed a ring.

"Give me your hand," he said.

Silently, Barbara held out her left hand to him. In silence he slipped upon her third finger a solitaire diamond.

"Oh!" she gasped. "How beautiful!"

He lifted her hand to his lips.

"It is just a little reminder of our love for each other, dear. I got a gold ring rather than a platinum one—fashionable as platinum is. But, I like the symbolism of the gold. You see I am not only old, but old-fashioned."

"Don't!" she protested. "Remember my warning to you about talking of yourself as old."

"I do remember it, darling. I will not transgress again."

She gazed at the ring. The diamond was large and white.

"Do you think," she faltered, "that it is right—for me to have such a handsome ring? Why?" with an unsteady laugh—"I am only me—such a silly person—and almost too young to wear such a beautiful stone."

But he checked her. "If it were the handsomest ring in the world, it would not be too beautiful for you, my darling!" he murmured.

Don't Spoil Your Hair By Washing It

When you wash your hair be careful what you use. Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle.

The best thing to use is Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap and beats anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.—Advertisement.

Cuticura

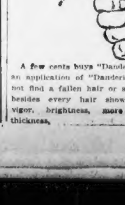
Quickly Soothes Itching Scalps

Treatment: Gently rub Cuticura Ointment, with the end of the finger, two spots of dandruff and itching. Follow next morning with a hot shampoo of Cuticura Soap. Repeat in two weeks. Nothing better than these fragrant super-creamy emollients for all skin and scalp troubles.

Sample Each Free by Mail. Address: "Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. 20, Malden 48, Mass." Sold everywhere. Soap 25c. Ointment 25 and 50c. Talcum 25c. Cuticura Soap shaves without mug.

"DANDERINE"

Stops Hair Coming Out; Doubles Its Beauty.



A few cents buys "Danderine." After an application of "Danderine" you can not find a fallen hair or any dandruff, besides every hair shows new life, vigor, brightness, more color and thickness.

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND Armstrong

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

ARMSTRONG
VARIATION—Armstrang.
RACIAL ORIGIN—English.
SOURCE—A nickname.

THE family name of Armstrong, of course, is most celebrated and widespread as a result of having been borne for centuries by one of the most influential clans of the Scottish lowlands. But it is by no means borne only by Scots, and it is a product of the English, not the Gaelic tongue.

The name appears to have sprung up independently in many localities, being a sobriquet or nickname of the type denoting a physical characteristic. Such nicknames were quite common in medieval England its meaning, of course, is exactly what it seems, "strong arm." One variation of it which virtually has become obsolete and is very rarely met with in the United States is "Stronglimbarm."

There is no doubt that in the cases of a number of families the name is simply the Anglicized equivalent of the Norman-French "Brasde-fer" or "Brasde-fer" ("arm of iron"), adopted at the period when the Anglo-Saxon influence re-asserted itself throughout England.

There is a legend that the name of the founder of the Armstrong border clan was named Fairbairn, but that a Scottish king conferred the former name on him for his feat in aiding the monarch to mount his horse, burdened with heavy armor as he was, when his former steed had been killed under him in battle, a legend born out by the crest, which shows an armored arm, with the hand grasping an armored leg, evidently meant to illustrate the act mentioned.

In five small ships, on October 14, 1718, the first members of the family of Armstrong to come to America arrived near the little wharf at the foot of State street, Boston. The city then contained 12,000 people. They came under the direction of their good pastor, Rev. James McGregor, and later went to Portland, where they underwent many privations for one Winter. Among these first Portland settlers were James Armstrong, Mary, his wife, and their infant son, Thomas; and John and his infant son, James. The shield of the Portland Armstrongs, probably as old a branch of the American family as any, was a field argent, with three arms in armor vambraced. The crest, illustrated in an old Scotch Bible of 1750, now in possession of Frederick Perley Armstrong, was an arm and hand holding an "oak eradicated."

The Rhyming Optimist

By Aline Michaelis

DON'T weep and wail and grieve 'cuz life's unfair!
That's the way you greet the day, is that so?
You don't have a fair!
A awful lot of failure's not the taking of a loss, nor does success just wholly stress the deal you put across. I've often seen it does not mean as much the winning hand as how you greet Old Man Defeat and where you take your stand. Sometimes I've met who never you have known when they were down; they peg along with smile and song in spite of Fortune's frown. And there are chaps with many traps all wreathed about with grins who do not wear and tear their hair each time they bump the shins. The world soon thins every scheme they have for copping cash is sure to win a lodging in the ash can. Don't moan and groan, the art it's looked like they were booked to wind up as a front in some retreat when things looked to end finished free of cost, do they repine and likewise whine because they made the splash? Nix, nix! Not much! they grin away above their frugal hash. Success is not in what you've got, you know it's all the way you face the fray and how you hit the trail.

Thin People Need Phosphate Most In Hot Weather

Apt to Take on Good Healthy Flesh Even on Sweltering Days if Pure Phosphate Is Taken with Meals.

Druggists Dispense Nitro-Phosphate Because It Is Real Organic Phosphate.

Thin men and women, nervous and prostatitly out of sorts, who want nerve force, energy, ambition and power of endurance, are just the people who will find a helpful friend in Nitro-Phosphate which is undoubtedly just what your nerves, blood and bone cells are hoarding for.

Phosphorus is a very important element of every living cell in your body. Without the necessary supply keen minds grow dull and often stupid; odd-time ambition vanishes and a wretched feeling of exhausted power supplants that once-dominable spirit so necessary to success in these strenuous times.

Nitro-Phosphate feeds the nerves direct with the phosphorus food element they crave for.

As evidence of results in cases of thin, exhausted people, clinical tests in the laboratories of Hospital Clinics have showed that two patients added 10 pounds each, one 23 pounds and the other 27, in weight, one 23 pounds and the other 27, while organic phosphate was administered, and both patients claim they have not been ill well and strong in the past twelve years.

Such tests as these lead Frederick S. Kolle, M. D., Editor-in-Chief of Physician's Every Day Helper, author of medical text books and member of Authors' Guild, Medical Society of America, Health League, Physicians' Legislative League, etc., to recommend Nitro-Phosphate. This pure Nitro-Phosphate should be prescribed by every doctor and used in every hospital."

And Joseph D. Harrigan, former Visiting Specialist to North Eastern Dispensary, says: "Any person who is weak, thin, nervous, anaemic or run-down, take a natural, unadulterated substance such as Nitro-Phosphate and you will soon see some astonishing results in the increase of nerve energy, strength and vitality. It is a remarkable tonic of endurance."

New Hair Growth After BALDNESS

HAIR "GROWN ON MR. BRITTAIN'S BALD HEAD BY INDIANS' MYSTERIOUS HAIR GROWER

My head at the top and back was absolutely bald. The scalp was shiny. An expert said that as he thought the hair roots were extinct, and there was no hope of my ever having a new hair growth. Yet now, at an age over 50, I possess a luxuriant growth of soft, strong, lustrous hair! No trace of baldness. The pictures shown here are from my photograph.

Photo when bald. Many men and women, and children, have received similar results.

At a time when I had become discouraged at trying various hair lotions, tonics, specialists' treatments, etc., I made a chance visit to the Cherokee Indian "medicine man" who had an office that he asserted would grow hair on anybody. Although I had but little faith, I gave it a trial. To my amazement, a light down appeared in a few days, into a healthy growth, and are long my hair was as prolific as in my youthful days.

That I was astonished and happy to express my state of mind wistfully, Christmas Day, 1919, I had my picture taken, showing the growth of hair on the scalp, awaiting the fertilizing potency of the mysterious pomade. I was obliged to remain for some days in the Indian village, preparing this mysterious elixir, now called Kotalko, and later had the recipe put into printed form by a chemist.

That my own hair growth was permanent has been amply proven by the many friends, have received similar results.

How YOU May Grow YOUR Hair

My honest belief is that hair roots rarely die even when the hair falls out through dandruff, fevers, excessive dryness or other disorders. I have been told by experts that often, when hair falls out at the roots become imbedded within the scalp, covered by hard skin, so that they remain for a time like bulbs or seeds in a garden. They will grow when brittle, shampoos (which contain alkalis) and hair tonics which poison the hair roots and enemies to the hair, as they dry it, making it brittle. Kotalko contains those elements of nature which give new vitality to the scalp and hair.

HELD AS SLAYER NAMES RIVAL

New York Woman Intercepted Letters to Husband She Killed

By Universal Service.

New York, Aug. 3—Mrs. Frank Sokolowsky, held on a charge of murdering her husband by pouring carbolic acid over him as he slept, to which she confessed, today informed the authorities of the name of her rival for Sokolowsky's affections. She said her husband intended to desert her, and for this reason she killed him, according to the police.

Mrs. Sokolowsky is said to have told the police that she intercepted letters written by Mrs. Katherine Neveloff, twenty-six, to Sokolowsky. Mrs. Neveloff's husband, she said, died last January.

Mrs. Neveloff became acquainted with the murdered labor leader shortly after the death of her husband. Sokolowsky had sympathized with her over her bereavement.

Stocks Rally in New York After Reaction; Call Money 8%; Sterling Exchange Weak

RAILS STRONG; OILS MIXED

Steels Recover and Equipments Advance While Motors Are Up; Market Active

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York at noon, but below the morning highest. Rails were leaders in the advance and closely followed by steels and equipments. Motors showed gains as a class, but oils were irregular. A number of specialties were among the strongest issues. The market was active, but trading was of less volume than during yesterday forenoon. First hour transactions totalled about 280,000 shares. Endicott Johnson and Chandler sold at new lows for 1920. Call loans renewed at 8 per cent. Sterling exchange was weak, demand opening 2¢ cents lower at $3.68¾.

Among strongest stocks were Stromberg, National Aniline, Bosch Magneto, Reading, Union Pacific, New York Central, Rock Island, American Locomotive, Baldwin, Vanadium, Mexican Petroleum and Crucible. They were up from one to more than two points at noon.

EARLY TREND INDEFINITE.

The initial movement was upward, but it was brief, being terminated almost at once by a reaction. The latter was short-lived also and before the end of the hour there was a second advance which took many issues above their opening level. Covering of shorts accounted for opening strength and was resumed when it was found that selling pressure met with considerable resistance. Bear raiders offered stocks freely in the interim to test the list. They found it less vulnerable than on Monday. During the early recessional they found coppers weak, Anaconda and Utah selling at lows for the year. Sinclair also touched its lowest for 1920 to date, but rallied quickly. Reading was conspicuous among rails. It gained almost two points, only to lose most of the advance. St. Louis and San Francisco and New Haven were among the strongest carriers. Steels yielded easily. Oils were irregular and motors were quiet, while equipments showed strength. By mid-morning the market was strong. It was professional in the main, although the public is showing more interest.

BULLS DISAPPOINTED.

The rank and file of traders remain on the bear side, but the few that have taken an opposite view were greatly disappointed over the action of the market after the announcement of freight rate increases. It is said, however, that the advantage to be gained by roads is offset by business conditions and the length of time that must elapse before carriers, even with adequate revenue, can reach a stage of rehabilitation which will enable them to render service of the necessary standard.

Foreign news was far from reassuring and first hour selling was partly occasioned by official advices to the foreign office of France that armistice negotiations between Poles and Russians had been broken off.

The drop in the prices of cereals, following the decline in valuation of a number of staple commodities, like silk and wool, is having an unsettling effect. Bears say you cannot look for a rise in stocks when deflation in other things is under way.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Aug. 3.—The cotton market experienced further violent decline on unsettling advices from the South regarding the financial status of a big warehouse, less favorable political news from Europe, fine weather over the belt and a severe break in foreign exchange. Initial prices were 19 to 46 points lower. Selling was heavy, led by the South and Wall Street, and prices continued to fall, breaking to a net decline of 75 to 95 points before the end of fifteen minutes. Much of the cotton had been covered on yesterday's rally was thrown on the market again. Opening prices were: October, 31.00; December, 30.45; January, 29.75; March, 29.45; May, 29.20.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Aug. 3.—Wheat opened 3½c to 5c higher. Corn started 1⅞c to 1½c higher and oats were steady to ⅛c higher. Provisions opened steady to 8c lower for lard and 25c lower for ribs. Opening prices were: Wheat—December, 2.17 to 2.20; March, 2.20. Corn—September, 1.38⅝ to 1.39; December, 1.23½ to 1.25. Oats—September, 68⅝ to 69¼. Lard—September, 18.20; October, 18.57 to 18.75. Ribs—October, 15.05.

Dividend Declarations

J. G. White Engineering declared extra dividend of 6 per cent., in addition to quarterly dividends of 1½ per cent. on common and 1¾ per cent. on preferred, payable September 1 to stock of record August 16.

FIVE SELL AT YEAR'S LOW

Boston Market Weak at Start and All the Morning; Curb Without Feature

Prices were lower on the Boston exchange at the outset and did not rally during the forenoon. Five issues sold at lows for the year during that period, they being U. S. Smelting, Copper Range, East Butte, Swift International and Libby. In other words, coppers and packing house issues were weak. But they were not active. Among stocks to sustain the largest losses were American Woolen preferred, Copper Range, Island Creek, United Fruit, Wickwire and Mexican Investment. They receded from one to two points. Rails were stronger, Boston & Maine and New Haven each advancing more than a point. The market was rather active and of fair breadth.

Among issues to show fractional losses were East Butte, Massachusetts Gas, Libby, Swift International, International Products, Gray & Davis, Eastern Steamship, Seneca and Davis Daly.

Issues to make small gains included United Shoe, West End and Swift & Co.

CURB WITHOUT FEATURE.

There was no feature to Curb trading during the morning, it beginning quiet and staying dull. Among strong issues at the start were Arizona Silver, Bagdad, Eureka and Mutual. Arizona Tip Top was among the weak ones. The most active stocks included Boston & Montana, Bagdad, Mutual and Eureka.

At the end of an hour Bagdad was up 3 cents at 28 cents and Eureka 1 cent at 34 cents, while Majestic was off 2 cents at 10 cents and Mutual 3 cents at 67 cents.

BOSTON FINANCIAL NOTES.

Wellesley, Mass., will receive proposals until noon August 5, for a temporary loan of $75,000, dated August 5 and payable December 3, 1920.

For the fiscal year ended with June the Wolverine Copper Company reports a net loss after charges and taxes of $86,025, against net profits of $10,553 in 1919.

John J. Carey, financial and editorial writer, is now in charge of the statistical department of Hayden, Stone & Co.

On July 1 The United Verde Extension Company had gained more than $700,000 in cash since April 1 and had reduced its copper on hand more than 300,000 pounds to a total of 20,815,512 pounds.

The Helvetia Copper Company has called an assessment of 50 cents a share, payable September 1. Transfer books close August 20 and reopen September 1, to provide funds to continue the development of the company's oil land leases near San Antonio, Texas. This assessment will make the stock $16.50 paid in. Par is $25.

GREAT DEMAND FOR ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES

Before he sailed for Europe, Vice-President Burchard of the General Electric Co. said he looked for a great expansion in the electrical industry. He remarked:

"The demand for electrical machinery has increased at tremendous rate, particularly in view of shorter working hours and decreased efficiency of labor. This naturally produces an increased demand for labor-saving machinery, and electric machinery lends itself to relieve the situation better than anything else. I am going abroad until October to look over our business in England, France, Belgium and Holland."

FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Offers the Most Profitable Field for Investment

German Exchange

Over one hundred per cent. has been made on money invested for four months in German bonds. The normal value of a 1000 Mark bond is $238. These bonds cost $11 last February and have since more than doubled. $200 invested today in German bonds will be worth over $1900 if held until the mark returns to normal.

Austrian Exchange

Austrian bonds are offered today at a price which makes possible a profit of over $20.00 for every $1.00 invested. We offer Vienna 5% treasury notes in blocks of 1000 to a million kronen. Large fortunes were made after the war of 1870 by purchasing French exchange. We strongly urge today the purchase of Austrian and German exchange.

Our organization consisting of a head office at 60 Broadway, New York, and branch offices and correspondents in Europe and in this country, makes it possible for us to execute orders promptly and accurately. Call or write for descriptive circulars.

HALT GOUGING BY COAL MEN

Commerce Commission Orders Railroads to Stop Reconsigning All Cars of Fuel

By Universal Service.

Washington, Aug. 3.—A body blow at the orgy of profiteering in coal was struck by the Interstate Commerce Commission when it ordered all railroads to cease the practice of reconsigning coal cars more than once.

Coal manipulators and speculators, it is admitted, have taken advantage of the present coal shortage and the fact that no limit was placed upon reconsignment, to tie up thousands of coal cars by reconsigning them from dealer to dealer until the highest market price could be claimed.

By means of this practice, bituminous coal, which averages $3.26 per ton at the mines, was sold at profits estimated as high as 200 to 300 per cent. Reports received by the commission during the present coal emergency have cited instances where cars and even trains of coal have been reconsigned as often as ten or a dozen times, until the speculators could throw the coal on the highest market.

The order of the commission, however, will practically terminate this practice, it is believed.

Production of Coal

Mining strikes in the West are reflected in the coal output. For the week ended July 24 the output of bituminous decreased, as compared with the preceding week, 329,000 tons to an estimated total of 10,601,000 net tons. Anthracite production decreased 23,000, to a total of 1,767,000 net tons.

Mail Order Sales Decrease

It has been stated that sales by Sears, Roebuck & Co., the largest mail order house, decreased in July, but it was not until the first of this month that the exact figures became known. Its July sales totalled $16,743,266, a decrease of $1,255,644, or 6.98 per cent., as compared with the corresponding month last year. For seven months sales aggregated $147,213,192, an increase of $35,151,381, or 28.50 per cent.

One Effect of Prohibition

When Secretary Rolland J. Hamilton of the American Radiator Co. returned from Europe he said that French and Italians are more concerned about our prohibition amendment than about our keeping out of President Wilson's league. He said that the closing of the American market to their wines has hurt their efforts to restore the pre-war balance of trade.

To the Casual Reader Whose Yearning Capacity Is Greater Than the Limited Earning Capacity of His Present Vocation:

The old adage about "opportunity knocking once on every man's door" is out of date today. The trouble is not with the lack of opportunity but with the lack of men to recognize opportunity.

The rewards of successful enterprise appeal to all, but there are only a few, a very few, who are willing to earn the reward.

Recently, several well-known men of international reputation became associated in a business way to direct the affairs of a new corporation which will soon be represented in every civilized country in the world.

Representing these men in an educational way is a unique and original corporation employing at the present time over 1,000 representatives and having offices in the principal cities of the United States and Canada. A majority of these men were formerly ministers, physicians, attorneys, college professors, successful executives, etc., many of them having given up lucrative positions of high earning power and many years standing in order to enter actively into our work.

To such men the ethical and patriotic side of our business has a tremendous appeal.

This corporation, already of national proportions, is about to launch an expansion program of international proportions, and is seeking material from which to develop executives of high earning power.

If you, Mr. Reader, can see opportunity in the above, and are a man of education, personality and refinement, and would appreciate the opportunity of hearing more about this corporation and what it has to offer YOU, would suggest that you write briefly, stating something about yourself, giving phone number, and personal interview will be arranged.

To those who qualify will be given the opportunity of meeting our executives at a special meeting to be held in the city of Boston on Thursday, August 5th.

This is a genuine opportunity for the man who can measure up to our standards, and will pay a minimum of $10,000 yearly on commission basis. All replies in strictest confidence. Address Department B, P. O. Box 1569, Boston.

A New Film Drama With Marion Davies

By Robert W. Chambers

CHAPTER XVII.—Continued

If he was to do anything, be anybody, attain distinction, count among writers of his era, he knew he was born and lived his youth to manhood—here where the tension of feverish living never relaxed, where a young high-mettled, high-strung nation was clamoring and fretting and quarrelling and forging ahead, now floundering aside after some will-o'-the-wisp, now scaling stupendous moral heights, noisy, half-educated, half-civilized, suspicious, flippant, bragging, sentimental yet iron-hearted, generous and brave.

Here His Destiny

Here on the nation's eastern edge, where the shattering dissonance of the iron city never ceased by day; where its vast, metallic vibration left the night eternally unquiet and the very sky quivering with the blows of sound under the stars incessant sparkle—here, after all, was where he belonged. Here he must have his say. Here lay his destiny. And, for the sake of all this which was his, and for no other reason, was attainment and distinction worth his effort.

For these people, and for their cities, for their ambitions, desires, aspirations—for the vast nation of which they formed their local fragment—only a native-born could be their interpreter, their eulogist, their defender, their apologist and their prophet. And for their credit alone was there any reason for his life's endeavor.

No cultured, suave product of generations of Europe's cultivation could handle these people and these themes convincingly and with subtle comprehension of authority. Red and laurel, scalpel and palm should be touched only by the hand of the native-born.

His pretty Countess had said to him once:

Words Recalled

"Only what you have seen, what you have lived and seen others live; only what you can detect from the clear-minded, cool, emotionless analysis of your own people is worth the telling. Only this carries conviction. And, when told with all the cunning of simplicity and skill of an artist, it carries with it that authority which leaves an impression indelible! Go back to your own people—if you really have anything to write worth reading."

Thinking of these things he locked his door on rooms now more or less in order, and went out into the street.

It was too warm for an overcoat. A primrose sunset light filled the street; the almost forgotten specific odor of New York invaded his memory again—an odor entirely different from that of any other city. For every city in the world has its own odor—not always a perfume.

Now, again, his heart was beating hard and fast at thought of seeing Stephanie, and the same indefinable anger possessed him—not directed entirely against anyone, but inclusive of himself, and her, and Grismer, and his own helplessness and isolation.

The street she lived on was quiet. There seemed to be a number of studios along the block. In a few minutes he saw the number he was looking for.

Four brick dwelling houses had been made over into one with studios on every floor—a rather pretty Colonial effect with green shutters, white doorway, and iron fence painted white.

In the quaint vestibule with its classic fanlight and delicate sidelights, he found her name on a letter box and pushed the electric button. The street door swung open noiselessly.

A Girlish Laugh

On the ground floor, facing him on the right, he saw a door on which was a copper plate bearing the names, "Miss Davis, Miss Quest." The door opened as he touched the knocker, a young girl in stained scuptor's smock stood there regarding him inquiringly, a cigarette between her pretty, clay-stained fingers.

"Miss——" he checked himself, reddening—"Mrs. Grismer, I mean?" he asked.

The girl laughed. She was brown-eyed, pink-cheeked, compactly and beautifully moulded, and her poise and movement betrayed the elasticity of superb health.

"She's out just now. Will you come in and wait?"

He went in, aware of clay studios on revolving stands, academic studies in unframed canvasses, charcoal drawings from the nude, thumb-tacked to the wall—the usual mess of dusty draperies, decrepit and nondescript furniture, soiled rugs and cherished objects of art. A cloying smell of plasticine pervaded the place. A large yellow cat, dozing on a sofa, opened one golden eye a little way, then closed it indifferently.

The girl who had admitted him indicated a chair and stepped before a revolving table on which was the roughly modelled sketch of a horse and rider.

She picked up a lump of waxy material, and kneading it in one hand, glanced absently at the sketch, then looked over her shoulder at Cleland with a friendly inquiring air:

"Miss Quest went out to see about her costume, I suppose she'll be back shortly."

"What costume?" he asked.

"Oh, didn't you know? It's for the Caricaturists' Ball, in aid of the Artists' funds. It's the ball of the gods—the great event of the season and the last. Evidently you don't live in New York."

"I haven't recently."

"I see. Will you have a cigarette?" She pointed at a box on a tea tray; he thanked her and lighted one. As he continued to remain standing she asked him again to be seated, and he complied.

She continued to pinch off little lumps of waxy, pliable composition and stick them on the horse. Still fussing with the sketch, he saw a smile curve her cheek in profile, and presently she said, without turning:

"Why did you speak of Stephanie Quest as Mrs. Grismer? We don't, you know."

"Why not? Isn't she?"

The girl looked at him over her shoulder. She was strikingly pretty, fresh and smooth-skinned as a child.

"Who are you?" she asked, with that same little hint of friendly curiosity in her brown eyes. "I'm Helen Davis, Stephanie's chum. You seem to know a good deal about her."

"I'm James Cleland," he said quietly, "her brother."

At that the girl's brown eyes flew wide open:

"Good Heavens!" she said. "Did Steve expect you? She never said a word to me! I thought you were a fixture in Europe!"

He sat biting the end of his cigarette, not looking at her:

"She didn't expect me," he said, flinging the half-burned cigarette into the silver slop-dish of the tea service. "I didn't notify her that I was coming."

FURNITURE

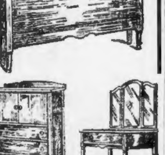
25¢ FOR THIS ATTRACTIVE $15 Aluminum Set

If you buy $100 worth or more, this month, at this big Uptown Store.

WHY WE CAN'T

Offer you a furniture sale this year. It is this, that conditions in this line are the same as last August. Manufacturers have constantly advanced their prices until today our regular Uptown value-giving prices are lower than the manufacturers! Therefore, how could we be honest with you and with ourselves and tell you of an August sale, when new goods today cost so much more. Consider this fact carefully, look at all sale values, then see the values this big Uptown store offers you in the regular way, and you will see for yourself what a saving it is to trade at this big Uptown store.

August Sales Stimulator



$150 Value $85

A value we know will boom our sales for August, and one that can hardly help but show you what a saving it is to trade Uptown. In spite of the fact that values are greater this month than any other, we show regular values that are even greater than the sale value. As an example: This beautiful suite is one of the latest combinations, consisting of 3 pieces—1 Bed, 1 Latest Style Three-Mirror Dressing Table and 1 Chifferobe, with four sliding trays and two drawers that give large and handy storage room. The finish is mahogany, the style of late William and Mary, really a most pleasing suite, one that will furnish your room most attractively, yet is moderately priced. Going price, $150. Our Uptown August price, $85.

OTHERS UP TO $1,000.

Other August Values

$18 Refrigerator $12.75
$110 Parlor Suite $75
$185 Dining Suite $115
$37 Hair and Felt Mattress ... $22

These are but a few of the hundreds of extraordinary values we are showing in all departments. But then see us. You will more readily see just how much we can save you, as well as how much cosier we can furnish your home.

Look First All You Can

Special Payments

may be arranged if you so desire. You may pay a comfortable amount at time of purchase and a comfortable amount each week until it is paid for. Six months' credit without interest.

MEASURES THAT WOULD CURE MOST OF THE TROUBLES AND TENDENCIES WHICH DISTRESS AND ALARM US TODAY

(1) To nominate for the Presidency by direct nomination and to elect by popular vote.
(2) To elect the Cabinet officers and make them responsible to Congress.
(3) To deprive the President of the power of patronage; to put all public offices as nearly as possible under Civil Service, and have appointments made by a committee of Congress.
(4) To elect Federal Judges, including the Supreme Court Justices, by popular vote.
(5) To apply the Initiative, the Referendum and the Recall to national matters.

The League Revealed in Its True Colors

A London dispatch says that the refusal of the Russian Government to allow the League of Nations to act as the intermediary between themselves and the conquered Poles is considered in London as the worst blow that the League of Nations has received since its rejection in the United States Senate.

Very properly, the able Russian statesmen who are guiding the destinies of their great race have refused to have any dealings with the league. From the beginning the Russian Government has seen through its thin disguise and has recognized its true character, not as the promoter of peace, but of war. More than a year ago Premier Lenin declared that the league was nothing more than an offensive and defensive alliance of those nations victorious by deceiving the United States concerning the objects for which they were fighting.

In all respects it has worked exactly as the Russian Prime Minister said that it would. The short but tragic war between Russia and Poland, ending in Poland's decisive defeat, is a perfect illustration of the character of the league and of its usefulness to promote and preserve peace.

Poland was created as an independent nation by the nations which dominate the league. Her boundaries were fixed by these nations. Russia, the only government which has been faithful to the principle of self-determination, accepted these boundaries.

But these nations which had created Poland wanted to keep Russia in a turmoil of war so that she could not be free to undertake the huge task of general education, of reorganization of her industry and of her railroads. So they armed, equipped and munitioned Poland, the United States Government helping in the wicked business. The preparation for war went on for two months, with every honest friend of the league in Europe, including ex-Premier Asquith, Lord Robert Cecil and General Smuts—himself the real author of the league—protesting publicly against it. They demanded that the league be invoked against this criminal preparation for a criminal war on an unoffending nation.

Lord Robert Cecil, England's leading exponent of the league, warned the British Foreign Minister that if the league could not prevent one of the weakest members from waging an unjust war it would be exposed to the world as the very thing which its opponents charged that it was—namely, an offensive and defensive alliance of several nations to preserve the spoils for England and France.

Under ordinary circumstances no nation ever is the aggressor in a war when she considers the chances against her. Why did Poland fight? The League of Nations is the answer—and the Pandora's box of evils in the League of Nations is Article X., which guarantees the territorial integrity of the members of the league.

The language itself of Article X. is bad enough, but as it had been construed by its friends, the governments of England and France, it is more war breeding than its opponents thought. Poland was told by the dominant members of the league that if she attacked Russia and defeated her it would be "all velvet," but that if she attacked and was defeated, Article X. would be invoked to defend her immediately.

It was not Prime Minister Lenin of Russia who dealt the heavy blow at the League of Nations by refusing to let the league arbitrate between Russia and Poland after Poland had taken her gamble and lost. The league stabbed herself by refusing to arbitrate before Poland took her chance.

The poor, rotten old cloak of the notorious first "Holy Alliance," which our modern imperialists dug up and used to hide the nakedness of the imperialistic alliance called the league, is so threadbare and outworn that it tears at the jostle of every event, and is even now so full of rents that the God of War it was meant to hide is in danger of indecent exposure every moment.

The Railroads Get Virtually Everything They Ask For

Private ownership of railroads gets almost all that it asked of the government and much more than it probably expected.

The market estimate of the value of its securities was only a little more than $14,000,000,000. The government assures it a six per cent. return on nearly $19,000,000,000, or about NINE per cent. on the market valuation.

Private ownership wanted higher freight rates. It gets them to the tune of 25 per cent. in the South and Mountain-Pacific sections, 35 per cent. from the Mississippi to the Rockies, and 40 per cent. in the East.

It wanted higher passenger rates, and it gets 20 per cent. more on regular tickets and 50 per cent. in the excess charge for Pullman service, besides 20 per cent. more for excess baggage.

The billion and a half a year thus added to your transportations cost will, Walker D. Hines estimates, be multiplied almost by five by the time it reaches you after each middleman has pocketed his profit. Which means more than $7,000,000,000 added yearly to the cost of living.

Seven billions is an average of $350 for each family of five. It is a great deal to add to what we already have to pay.

One thing only can warrant it—value received. If the railways give as much better service as they charge extra freights and fares the people may for a while longer tolerate private ownership.

When you compared the three-cent fares of the McAdoo regime with the pre-war two-cent fares, you thought government operation was expensive, didn't you? And you were rather pleased when Congress gave the railroads back, weren't you? Because you had been so often told by the special interest press that government operation was an expensive failure that you really believed it.

You will now pay 3½ cents a mile or more when you travel by rail; you will pay almost half as much again for your freight as you paid when Uncle Sam held the throttle, and it isn't by any means sure as yet that the service will be any better or even as good.

We learn by experience. It is a costly school, but necessary for those incapable of instruction otherwise.

More Truth Than Poetry

Perfectly Placid

By S. E. KISER

"I NEVER borrow trouble, and I take things as they come,"
Said Josiah J. McCook of Hooper's Bend;
"It never helps you any to be out of sorts and glum;
There's profit in a placid front, my friend;
Even if you have a pain
Try to hide it; don't complain,
For grumbling gets you nothing, in the end.

"LAST Winter, when they told me that my wife would have to die
I never lost my self-control at all;
I listened to the doctor and I looked him in the eye,
As if the consequence were very small;
Other men sometimes collapse
When they get such news, perhaps;
I caused no screech or echo through the hall.

"I TELL you, friend, it never pays a man to lose his nerve;
If you're troubled never let the fact be known;
Who cares about your worries? Let misfortune only serve
To strengthen you to bear your ills alone;
The men are mighty few
Who will sympathize with you
When you mutter in a hopeless, cheerless tone.

"I HAVE trained myself to cover up my feelings when I'm sad,
I keep a placid front through thick and thin"—
A stone that has been thrown by a naughty little lad
Hit Josiah J. McCook upon the chin;
If you're betting he forgot
To be placid, I will not Waste a moment in denying that you win.

Stars and Stripes

My wife's allowance must be raised,
I've just received the information;
Like others who have little tact
And only see one side, in fact,
She won't consent to arbitration.

One of the worst things about people who ride hobbies is that they usually want to ride over other people's grass.

Some people never seem to be able to find out that they will not be likely to learn much simply by hearing themselves talk.

Apparently if we want popularity abroad we must buy it, with no assurance of a permanent delivery of the goods.

The man who has good health and a steady job and still complains about his luck will be disappointed at conditions in heaven, if he ever gets there.

Our soldiers who fell in France died, General Pershing says, to insure freedom to all mankind. That certainly was their intention, but the freedom area appears to be shrinking rapidly.

New diamond mines have been found in South Africa, but the fact that they are located in a very dry district will halt a lot of people who might otherwise be tempted to hurry down that way in search of fortune.

The Turks and Greeks and Czechs and Poles,
As is their custom, are at war,
And couldn't tell, to save their souls,
Just what it is they're fighting for;
They fight, as fighters always do,
Because their leaders tell them to.

Unfortunately, Mr. Watson, the eminent bluebeard, will not be able to report either of the big conventions.

I HAVE a letter
FROM AN Iowa farm.
AND THE letter is signed,
"A FARMER'S Wife."
AND SHE tells me of
"Dick."
A PLAIN farm horse.
THAT FOR many years.
WORKED FAITH-FULLY.
AND AS horses do.
HAD GROWN old.
AND LAST Spring came.
AND THE farmer man.
WENT OUT to the barn.
OR WHEREVER Dick
was.
AND PATTED his neck.
AND SAID to him.
"YOU'RE A good old horse.
"AND YOU'VE served
me well.
"AND WE'VE both worked hard.
"AND I can't quit.
"BUT FROM this day on.
"YOU'RE GOING to rest.
AND SO it is.
THAT GOOD old Dick.
JUST ROAMS around.
IN A pasture field.

WHERE THE grass is
sweet.
AND ALL he does.
OUTSIDE OF this.
IS ONCE in a while.
WHEN THEY harness
him up.
JUST TO let him know.
THAT HE'S needed still.
AND THE farmer's wife.
SAYS SHE'S just come in.
FROM THE haying field.
AND BEYOND the fence.
SHE SAW old Dick.
WITH HIS ears straight up.
AS HE looked across.
AT THE busy men.
AND HEARD their calls.
TO HIS stablemates.
OF YOUNGER years.
WHO STILL must work.
AND SHE asks of me.
THAT I write these lines.
AND SHE'LL clip them out.
AND PUT them away.
AND SO I write.
AND ADD Dick's thanks.
FOR A farmer man.
WHO WAS good to him.

I THANK you.

WARN GIRLS OF SMOOTH TONGUE OF MEN

By Winifred Black

Early one morning, just as the day was breaking,
I heard a poor maid singing in the valley below.
"Ah, never leave me; ah, don't deceive me;
How can you use a poor maiden so?"

I HEARD the old song this morning; ringing through the garden like a chime of melancholy bells, and my heart was full of sorrow and of sympathy, for I know a girl who is like the poor maiden in the song. Her lover has deceived her, and he has left her alone. But she cannot sing about it.

She cannot even weep. She must hold up her head and smile, or else people will guess—and if they did that she would die.

I heard a gay bachelor talking to his pretty niece the other day.

"Listen to me, my dear," he said. "But of course you won't. They never will. Listen to me. You are going to meet all kinds of men, and they'll tell you all kinds of things. They'll say 'I love you' in a hundred different ways. And you'll listen, and some day you'll believe, and perhaps you will be right in believing. But there is one absolute test of a man's true love for a girl. If he loves her, really, he will never compromise her, he will never do anything to make people speak her name lightly, and he will never ask her to do anything that she has been taught is wrong.

"Of course, you believe that now; but when some soft-eyed, glib-tongued rascal tells you that that idea has gone out and that people don't believe in it any longer—are you going to listen to him?

"Are you going to throw away the only guide you have, your own conscience, your own knowledge of right and wrong, just to please some selfish scoundrel who doesn't care whether you live or die, after he's gone, just so that you amuse him for a little while?"

And the pretty niece was furious. "What do you think I am?" she said. "A fool or a light woman? Don't you suppose I have any pride or any self-respect or any character at all"

"My dear," said the gay bachelor, "I'm not interested in these things. What I want you to have is common sense. If you have that, you're safe. If you haven't, you aren't—and that's all there is to it."

"A fine lot of men you must know," said the pretty niece, "and a fine lot of girls, too."

The gay bachelor flushed crimson, and then he turned very pale.

"Never mind what I am, or what kind of people I know," he said. "You're my dead sister's child, and I'm trying to help you."

And I thought of the little girl I knew, whose heart was broken by that very bachelor, and I knew that when he was taking to his niece he was telling for once the plain, honest truth.

THE EXTRAVAGANCE OF LEISURE.

Forget your present position and try to imagine where you will be in five years from now and what must happen in your family to improve conditions.

Stop drifting and join the class which looks ahead.

You have been quite comfortable in the thought that there is plenty of time a little later for you to do something to increase your earning capacity.

But the longer you put it off the harder it is going to be.

No person in your life can be better than the present.

You will never be younger and soon you will feel too old.

Ten years from now—who knows what ten years may bring forth?

Even now you are regretting certain things which you wish you might have had to enable you to reap the benefit now, yet you hesitate at the crossing of the roads as to whether to improve yourself in mind and in body just because it means genuine hard work and criticism.

Go ahead and make all you can of yourself today—now—while the time is yours and the leisure is so valuable.

BRIGHT BOYS CAN WELL CONSIDER SCIENCE

By Garrett P. Serviss,

A "THIRTEEN YEAR-OLD BOY" of Chicago, interested in science, asks why "frictional" electricity is conducted by both metals and non-metals, and "current" electricity generally only by metals, and what is the difference between the two forms of electricity.

It is well that bright-minded boys should learn all they can about electricity, for, since "knowledge is power," the time may not be far in the future when he who knows the most about electricity and is capable of using his knowledge may be the most powerful man in the world.

"Frictional electricity" is an old term for what is now usually called "static electricity," i. e., "standing" electricity, or electricity at rest, while "current electricity," as its name implies, is electricity in motion or flowing in current. This originally was called "galvanic electricity." A nearer approach to a difference in kind is that which distinguishes "positive" from "negative" electricity. But this difference is just the same, whether the electricity is in the static or the current state. The electricity that is brought into evidence by rubbing a glass rod with silk is called positive, and that which is brought into evidence by rubbing a stick of sealing wax or india rubber or amber with wool or fur is called negative.

Cause of Attraction

An attraction exists between a body charged negatively and another charged positively, but there is repulsion between two bodies which are both charged either positively or negatively.

One view of the matter is that a positively charged body simply possesses an excess of electricity, while a negatively charged body is one that falls short of the normal supply. But recent discoveries indicate that there may be a more fundamental difference between positive and negative charges.

Atoms are found to be made up of negative electric units called electrons associated with positive units called nuclei. A current of electricity is believed to consist of a stream of free electrons—that is, electrons not permanently bound up in atoms, flowing through a conductor, the direction of flow being regarded as from positive to negative, i. e., from the place where the "potential" (we may think of "potential" as meaning quantity) is high, toward the place where it is low.

The current flows through the substance of the conductor, the electrons passing from atom to atom, or from molecule to molecule. All substances conduct electricity to some degree, however slight, but those which allow the current to pass easily are called conductors, while those through which it can go only with great difficulty are called non-conductors, insulators, or dielectrics. All metals are conductors, together with some non-metals. Glass, air, silk, etc., are non-conductors.

Electrons and Ions

In conducting liquids and gases the currents consist of electrons associated with electrified particles called ions ("goers" or "carriers"). Metal conductors appear to be in a state of complete ionization, so that the electrons move freely through the substance, while non-conductor have no free ions, or free electrons, to form currents. more or less resistance to the passage of a current. This may be due to collisions between the flowing electrons and the atoms of the metal. At any rate, it produces heat. When the resistance is high, as in the loop of an electric lamp, the heat, or molecular agitation, rises to incandescence.

On the other hand, a charge of static, or frictional electricity, rests on the surface of the body. Such a charge cannot be retained by a conductor unless it (the conductor) is insulated, i. e., surrounded by some non-conducting substance, or medium, like glass or dry air. If a charge is produced on a non-conducting body it remains at the point where it was formed, and does not even flow over the surface, or at best only very slowly. But on a conducting body a charge distributes itself, more or less uniformly, over the whole surface.
